

UNCLE JOE WAS GIVEN AN OVATION

HIGH 12TH BIRTHDAY OF VETERAN ILLINOIS CONGRESSMAN CELEBRATED.

H. A. COOPER PRESIDED

Former Opponent to His So-Called Cast Iron Rulings Takes Chair During Ceremonies.

Washington, May 6.—Party lines disappeared and old scores were forgotten by the house today when during the first hour of the regular session it joined in paying tribute to Representative Cannon of Illinois, the former speaker who will be eighty years old tomorrow. Never before in the history of the house had an hour of working session been set aside to honor a living member.

Representative Henry Allen Cooper of the First Wisconsin congressional district, one of the original revolutionaries against the so-called "Cannon rule," presided during part of the ceremony, again a friend of "Uncle Joe."

Speaker Clark, in a friendly and humorous speech, termed Mr. Cannon as one of the "top notchers" class of men.

Still crying himself as straight as an Indian, and as ruddy checked as a school boy, Mr. Cannon marched down the center aisle of the house and delivered an address of appreciation to his twentieth birthday.

Next Monday eighty diners will celebrate the birthday as guests of Congressman Ira C. Conley of Illinois. The dinner speaker will be Mr. Cannon on Sunday, but the celebration extends over three days, the house giving him a party all of his own on the preceding day.

Congressman W. A. Rodenberg of Illinois was in charge of the house celebration and by agreement it was recognized for one hour immediately after the reading of the journal this morning. He spoke for fifteen minutes in praise of the congressional congressman with the phenomenal record of long service, and then surrendered to Speaker Champ Clark, successor as speaker to Mr. Cannon.

Other speeches were made by Congressman Kitchin, floor leader; Congressman F. L. Sherwood and Congressman F. C. Gillette of Massachusetts, Mr. Gillette at the time being speaker. Mr. Gillette is serving his twenty-fourth successive year in the house and General Sherwood is serving his twelfth.

Uncle Joe's record is not threatened. He is now serving his twentieth term, or fortieth years in the house, his closest rival being Congressman Jones of Virginia, who is serving his thirtieth term.

Uncle Joe and General Sherwood were both elected to the Forty-third congress, after which the Ohio representative left the race for many years.

Mr. Cannon was defeated once to be returned for this, the Sixty-fourth, in four congresses, the Fifty-eighth to the Sixty-first, he was speaker of the house.

Ten years ago, when Uncle Joe was speaker of the house and at the zenith of his career, the entire capital joined in celebrating his seventieth birthday. President Roosevelt, Vice President Fairbanks, all the members of the senate and house, cabinet officials, the supreme court, ambassadors, army, and department heads, and newspaper men joined in a party at the old Arlington hotel.

AN EIGHT YEAR OLD BOY KILLED MOTHER THROUGH ACCIDENT

He First Charged Father With Killing But Today Admits He Shot His Parent.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Portsmouth, Ohio, May 6.—George Jordan, aged eight, who told officials Wednesday that his father, Roy Jordan, killed his mother with a shotgun following a quarrel because she did not get up early enough to get breakfast, today confessed he shot his mother, officials said.

The officials had brought George, another son, and Fred, a little three year old son, before the private judge, and were preparing to ask them some questions, when Fred in innocence and with a pointing hand, said:

"George, what did you kill mama for?" George hung his head and failed to answer. "The officials were quick to follow the lead and asked Fred how George killed his mother, and the little chap said:

"George killed her with a gun." The eight year old lad when asked if the accusation made by his baby brother were true, admitted them. He said that he was playing with the shotgun and did not know it was loaded. He pulled the trigger back and the contents of the gun were discharged into his mother's head.

Thursday the boy and his three brothers were allowed to attend their mother's funeral in custody of the sheriff, but the father was held in jail. Yesterday the father was formally charged with murder.

HATIAN SENATE IS ORDERED DISPERSED

American Admiral Orders Dismissal of Body Which Meets Contrary to Warning.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Port Au Prince, Haiti, May 6.—Members of the Haitian senate who persisted in holding a meeting in spite of the warning of Rear Admiral Caperton, in command of the American forces here, were disbanded today by a detachment of gendarmes commanded by an American officer. The senators protested but offered no resistance.

Rear Admiral Caperton, in charge of the American forces in Santo Domingo, Haiti, today advised the navy department that the situation in Santo Domingo, in revolt against President Jimenez, was grave.

Admiral Caperton did not report landward marines to guard the American legation.

Secretary Daniels said the admiral had full authority to take any steps necessary to preserve order.

U.S. CAVALRY FRENCH ON ROUTS VILLA DEFENSIVE BANDIT GANG IN TRENCH

KILL FORTY-TWO MEXICANS IN SURPRISE ATTACK—NO AMERICAN CASUALTIES REPORTED

MAY SIGN A PROTOCOL IN THE AIR FIGHTS

Scott and Obregon Will Hold Another Conference in Which Definite Agreement Will Be Signed

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Field Headquarters near Namiquipa, by wireless to Columbus, May 6.—A full squadron of 230 men of the Eleventh cavalry surprised and routed a much larger force of Villa bandits at Ojo-Azuces, seventeen miles south of Chihuahua early yesterday.

Killed 42 Mexicans. Forty-two Mexicans were killed and a number wounded. There were no American casualties. Seventy-five horses and mules were captured.

The American command was under Major Robert L. Howze and had been pursuing the Villistas under General Cruz Dominguez and Julio Ocoz for several days when they encountered them yesterday camped in the adobe village of Ojo-Azuces.

The Mexicans were utterly surprised and sprang from their pallets half clothed. After firing a few wild shots they began a flight, each man shifting for his own safety.

Some of them were able to seize their horses, already jaded from a hard day's ride previously, but others were left to find their own way out. In Major Howze's report, he said the rout had been absolute and that he was still pursuing the scattered remnants of the band.

The band numbered 140 men, the largest remaining under the Villa standard, and yesterday's decisive victory gave much satisfaction to military men here.

While the dispatches did not state, military men on the border believe the band is the same as that defeated at Temohic April 22 by Colonel Dodd's command.

To Draw Up Protocol. El Paso, May 6.—Gens. Scott and Funston plan today to hold another conference with Gen. Obregon in expectation that before it is ended the suggestions of the United States government for co-operative disbursal of the Villa bands in Mexico would take the form of a duly signed protocol.

Prior to the meeting, however, came reports from Juarez that the negotiations might extend into still another session of the conference because Gen. Carranza had expressed a wish for further discussion of the subject.

The Villistas arrived at Ojo-Azuces the night before and attempted to take the town from the Carranza garrison. Meeting with resistance, they decided to wait until morning before renewing the effort.

Major Howze at San Antonio, thirty-six miles to the north, learned of the action and set out at once with six troops of the Eleventh cavalry to relieve the town. The command reached the outskirts of Ojo-Azuces shortly after dark and took the bandits completely off their guard.

Justice Winslow assumed the duties of his office two days later. He became chief justice of supreme court by reason of the seniority of his service, upon the death of Chief Justice Cassiday, December 30, 1907.

STUDY THE NOTE VERY CAREFULLY

DIPLOMATS AT WASHINGTON ARE MOST ANXIOUS AS TO MEANINGS.

INVESTIGATE DETAILS

President Looks Particularly Over Portion Referring to Peace—French Press Comments.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, May 6.—The official text of Germany's note fully decoded and laid before President Wilson today shows no material difference from the unofficial text published yesterday in news dispatches. This strengthens the probability that a diplomatic break has been averted, at least for the present.

Indifferent in Berlin. Berlin, May 6.—The official text of Germany's note fully decoded and laid before President Wilson today shows no material difference from the unofficial text published yesterday in news dispatches. This strengthens the probability that a diplomatic break has been averted, at least for the present.

The utter lack of excitement on the part of the majority of the people of Berlin with which publication of the German note to the United States was received, was in strong contrast with the great interest shown everywhere when the American note to Germany was published April 22.

After the first flurry at noon today, when extra editions of the newspapers appeared with the text of the note, the city resumed its usual calm. In fact it was almost a dead calm on account of the blistering heat. Newsdealers who had ordered especially large supplies of papers, could not get rid of them, for the public simply refused to buy them or be burdened by reading them.

Throughout the afternoon listless crowds of average size thronged the principal streets and cafes. Not one person in fifty as far as could be seen glanced at a newspaper or made a shrewd guess at the meaning of the note. Nowhere could be heard any particular discussion of the German-American situation, nor were there signs of antipathy to persons speaking English, which frequently has been noticeable.

Must Support Government. The Tagliche Rundschau, while expressing the opinion that the German note was a different character, urges that the expression of divergent views is unwarranted at this moment, and that everybody should subordinate his own judgment and stand by the government.

"After Germany has undertaken this doubly difficult sacrifice," says the paper, "Germans are entitled to expect America to keep her promise to restore the freedom of the seas as against all belligerents. It is now up to the American people to show before all the world whether their purpose was to put the readers of the note to act as England's ally, with a view to cripple us and frustrate our victory."

The Berlin Tageblatt contents itself with stating that the note is a different character, and expressing the hope that it will attain its aim in preventing war with America.

Reads Note. President Wilson read today with careful attention the portion of the note touching on peace. Some officials believed unusual significance should be attached to that part of the note, because it was the first indication officially that recent speeches of Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg before the Reichstag were intended as notices to the world that Germany was ready for peace on the terms of the note.

The note says: "The German government conscious of Germany's strength, twice within the last few months announced before the world its readiness to make peace on a basis safeguarding Germany's vital interests, thus indicating it is not Germany's fault peace is still withheld from the nations of Europe."

While the note indicated that President Wilson would make no further peace move until the allied governments have signified their willingness to receive suggestions on the subject, some officials thought today that the German note might possibly draw forth something from the allies.

French Opinion. Paris, May 6.—The French press subjects the German note to the United States to severe analysis, drawing varying conclusions from it. Some newspapers consider Germany has yielded although with bad grace, others believe the document is a tortuous refusal.

The Petit Journal, the newspaper of Stephen Pichon, former foreign minister, said Germany certainly makes a concession on the essential point in regard to sinking vessels without warning, but in the next breath seeks to make capital out of that concession by asking the United States to ensure respect for liberty of the seas. This means in substance, the newspaper says, the suppression, or at least attenuation of the blockade from which the German people are suffering more and more.

POET HOBO ESCAPES FROM LOCK-UP CELL

Alleged Thief Slips From "Bull Pen" As Officer Is Freeing Vagrants in for Night's Lodging.
Len Carroll, the hobo poet, panhandler and alleged thief slipped out of the police department early this morning, and instead of being behind the bars waiting to be arraigned for a burglary, committed at Evansville, Carroll is at liberty. Carroll in and near this city so far has failed to find the prisoner who escaped in a daring and clever manner from the city lock up.
Officer Charles Dickerson at five o'clock this morning went into the cell rooms, called the "bull pen" to release several hobos and transients who were in for a night's lodging. Carroll had been placed in with a transient during the night. Dickerson unlocked this cell and told the vagrant to go out in the corridor. Carroll went to the corridor and hid on the side of the cells, and left the door to Carroll's cell unlocked, for a few seconds, not thinking about the prisoner.
After the transients had been taken out of the cell room, Carroll was missed. The prisoner had ducked out from the cell, when the officer was on the other side and had escaped through the cell doors and from the building without observation. When it was ascertained Carroll had escaped, the police started out on a wide search to find the fugitive. The police patrol was sent to the South Janesville yards and even as far as Afon. Carroll is described as being between thirty and thirty-five years of age, five feet tall, a powerful physique weighing about 180 pounds. Carroll is a professional beggar being able to feign blindness and also to being a cripple. He must be apprehended later in the day by police in cities near here. Warnings were sent out by Chief of Police Champion.

WILBUR CARLE HEADS CITY POLICE BOARD

Mayor Fathers was named as secretary and John J. Kelley became a member of the board, completing the organization with each ward being represented by a member.
For many months the fire and police commission have not held a meeting and it began to look as if the board had become defunct through the lack of business to be transacted by the members. Last evening the commission took steps to have examination for applicants for both the fire and police departments to be held on the twenty-sixth of this month. Application blanks can be obtained from the chiefs of each department and from the city clerk.
George Champion, brother of Chief P. J. Champion has been placed on the police department for the day being an officer Fred Albright resigned, leaving it necessary to put on a new officer at once to cover a "beat." The commission adjourned until a call from the new president.

The Point.
The "point" is a place which a great many people claim to see, but very few are able to get to. They will travel all around it, but to go right through to it, to make an attempt to arrive at it, is quite beyond them.

The Kingdom.
The kingdom of heaven is at hand in your consciousness. Why do you not reveal it? Why do you let the beggarly things of intellect hide away this pearl of great price within you? Are these fleeing things of sense, that are yours today and someone else's tomorrow, next month, or next year, of more value than possession everlasting? What are you striving for, anyway?—Unity.

GET WRONG OPINION OF WEST'S ATTITUDE

EASTERN PUBLIC MISLED BY FLOOD OF LETTERS AND TELEGRAMS TO CON-GRESSMEN.

HUSTING STANDS FIRM

Junior Wisconsin Senator Refuses to Be Moved by Mutterings Which He Knows Are Not Representative.

By Ellis B. Usher.

Milwaukee, May 6.—Even a trip through the east, such as I have recently made, discloses quite a general misapprehension of the attitude of the middle west regarding the absorbing questions of the day, in all of which the war is uppermost. The east has received much of its misinformation from middle western congressmen, whose votes, like those of our Wisconsin delegation, are far out of line with the sentiments of their constituents. It is not singular that such an outburst as the recent deluge of canned telegrams from German sympathizers in the middle west, Wisconsin being fully represented, should appear on the surface to be representative and to account to eastern people, for the timorous or openly wrongheaded attitude of our representatives. But I learned long ago that the atmosphere of public life in the national capital is surcharged all the time with misconception and misinformation. Public men there, who set their knowledge of the sentiment of the country, or of any part of it, by exchanging gossip, learn a great many things that "ain't so," and when you add their personal political anxieties they are in a frame of mind to believe this. This is the fact that our German propagandists are presuming upon, and the moment a frightened congressman says anything that is doubtful, as to the course of our government, they get busy and give it wings. This puts him on record and his name is at once used to bolster the propaganda and try to intimidate less pliant statesmen.

Position of Husting.

This is the sort of line in the rear that our sturdy Wisconsin senator, Paul Husting, is subjected to. He is fresh enough from Wisconsin and he knows his German neighbors well enough to be unafraid; but it isn't because they have not tried to scare him, even to threaten him. Naturally an organized machine of long standing, like the German-American Alliance and its co-operating "peace" organizations, can do work effectively, so far as the number of persons they can call into action. They demonstrated that the other day when they bombarded congress with thousands of telegrams. They don't seem to understand, however, that they have provoked resentment, serious resentment, even among congressmen who had been wobbling. The German propagandists don't understand the man who is an American because he is and means to continue a free man. They cannot see that there is a point beyond which he will not drive, and at which he will turn upon them. But the fact remains that the people who resent the un-American attempt to intimidate congress keep altogether too quiet. They are not organized and they don't write or telegraph Senator Husting, that he is "all right" and Wisconsin is learning to be proud of him, but it helps, not only him, but others to let him hear from his backers at election time. The spring election showed how Wisconsin sentiment really is. The fall elections will demonstrate that Wisconsin is anything but a nest of foreign sympathizers. No one who can measure conditions doubts that Wisconsin stands up for the government of the United States, that means, so long as Mr. Wilson is at the head of the government, that the people will be at his back, here and everywhere. This country never in its history failed to sustain itself. That is all it means.

Milwaukee News Notes.
Milwaukee is organizing a local chapter of the American Red Cross. J. J. O'Connor, who has been in charge of the beginnings of most of the chapters in the middle west, especially in Chicago and Illinois, spoke before an interested group at the Hotel Pfister on the subject. He pointed out several of the important services rendered by such an organization in peace as well as war. The chapter is backed up by some of the substantial men and women of Milwaukee, who hope that the movement will spread.

The Shakespeare pageant of last week is still being discussed here in Milwaukee. There was a large group who thought it should be staged again, but the tremendous expense necessary negated that at once. The guarantors of the $5,500 fund will be called upon to pay about $750, for the cost did not equal the expense by that amount. It was a first thought that there would be no deficit owing to the tremendous attendance at both performances, but even as it is, there is a grumbling. The pageant was worth it.

A movement is on foot to endow a local private school and make it a country day school just outside Milwaukee. The Nichols school in Buffalo is the most prominent example of the successful institution of this type in this country. There are many of them. Minneapolis, in the Black school, has one of the best equipped and most promising in the middle west. The idea is this: The boys go to school in the morning and spend the day there, lunches being served by the school. Thus they have study and recreation all under supervision, for the average boy will not have any "home work" to do. The schools thus combine the advantages of boarding school and the home life influence of a local day school. Educators who have studied the proposition believe it to be an ideal solution of the school problem. The Milwaukee movement is nebulous as yet, but has some prominent men interested already.

Golf Season Late.

Golfers in Wisconsin are bemoaning a season already ten days late. The last of this week has given greater promise of real growing weather than we have had to date. These golfers, by the way, are not all so selfish that they can only see their own desires in the weather prophecy. They realize what a slow season means to the crops also. But get two or three representative business men together—these golfers are not all golfers—and they will begin to lament the lack of warm weather which is responsible for the slow way in which the local links are rounding into shape. Putting greens are marking time in the matter. The Blue Mound Country club especially is anxious about their green. They do not want the Western Open this year to have such an experience as the mid-west pros ran into last. As I understand it, the greens at last year's Western Open were like greased lightning and ruined many an otherwise good score. East greens are correct, but there is no blight like a treacherous overslick green. I have seen greens on which a light wind would move the ball, and that is not golf.

The Erie First.

Colonel John S. Bell, in the Erie Emporium Magazine for April, is responsible for an interview which discloses some "Erie first" achievements. The Erie was the first road to tunnel through Bergen Hill. Today the road runs the greatest number of trains into and out of Jersey City daily of any line, there being 336 trains in every 24 hours. The Erie was the first train from Buffalo to New York without changing cars. The Erie first used the telegraph to dispatch trains and was the first to equip those trains with sleeping cars. This is some indication of the progressive Erie, as indicated in last week's letter and President Underwood, as all readers of this letter know, has made the Erie first in so many other ways that it is today doing a greater business each month, especially in Wisconsin. Sound financing and good service, such as Harvey Phett gives Wisconsin shippers, are due to the president's present Erie first policy.

ROSE-BREADED GROSBREAK

(Zamelodia ludoviciana)

Length, eight inches.

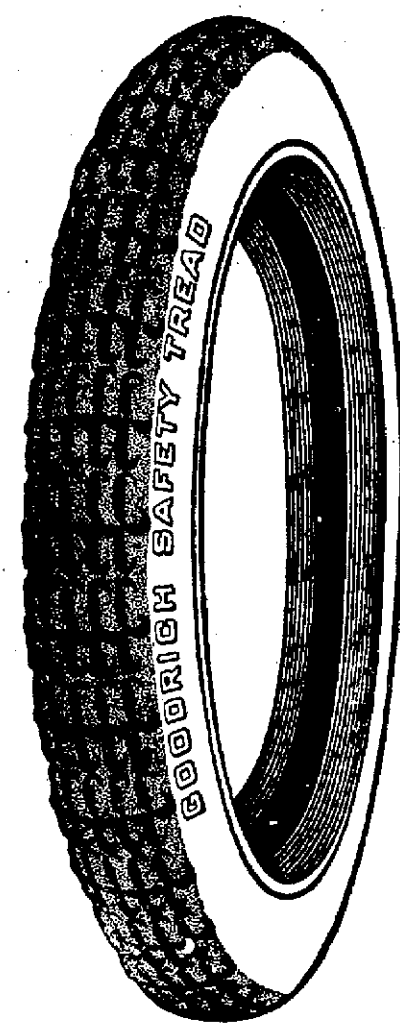

Range: Breeds from Kansas, Ohio, Georgia (mountains), and New Jersey, north to southern Canada; winters from Mexico to South America.

Habits and economic status: This beautiful grosbeak is noted for its clear, melodious notes, which are poured forth in generous measure. The rosebreast sings even at midday during summer, when the intense heat has silenced almost every other songster. Its beautiful plumage and sweet song are not its sole claim on our favor, for few birds are more beneficial to agriculture. The rosebreast eats some green peas and does some damage to fruit. But this mischief is much more than balanced by the destruction of insect pests. The bird is so fond of the Colorado potato beetle that it has earned the name of "potato-bug bird," and no less than a tenth of the total food of the rosebreasts examined consists of potato beetles—evidence that the bird is one of the most important enemies of the pest. It vigorously attacks cucumber beetles and many of the scale insects. It proved an active enemy of the Rocky mountain locust during that insect's ruinous invasions, and among the other pests it consumes are the spring and fall cankerworms, orchard and forest tent caterpillars, tussock, gipsy, and brown-tail moths, plum curculio, army worm, and chinch bug. In fact, not one of our birds has a better record.

Daily Thought.

A man of sense takes the time necessary for doing well the thing he is about; and his haste to dispatch a business only appears by the continuity of his application to it. He pursues it by cool steadiness and finishes it before he begins any other.—Ches-terfield.

No Tires are "larger,"— taken Type for Type,—than —GOODRICH Black-Treads

SIZE for Size, and Type for Type, Goodrich Tires are as large as the largest put out by any Maker, and WILL BE SO MAINTAINED.

This means larger than corresponding Sizes and Types of many other Tires for which even higher prices are asked.

It means, too, the most generously made FABRIC Tires on the Market, at any price.

Manufactured by the largest Rubber Factory in America, with a 47 year Experience in Rubber-working, and a Record for DEPENDABILITY which makes the above statements worthy of prompt acceptance.

Made from the new "Barefoot Rubber," which gives its maximum Traction with minimum Friction,—with resilience, liveliness and long-life to Tires.

PRICED on that "Fair-List" basis initiated Jan. 1st, 1915, by the B. F. Goodrich Co., which saved more than $25,000,000 last year to Tire-Users, through its propaganda against Padded Price-Lists.

Priced so reasonably low that Competitors, whose products are not comparable, claim superiority on the mere strength of their Higher Prices (and the Larger Profits they demand from the Tire-User and Dealer).

Goodrich Prices are based on what it costs the largest, and longest experienced, Rubber Factory to manufacture Tires, as ONE of the 269 lines of Goodrich Rubber Goods for which it buys Crude Rubber, and over which its Overhead Expenses are divided.

Good Business Men should know, from this, why Goodrich "Barefoot" Tires can be (as they are) the best Tires on the Market AT ANY PRICE, —though quoted at the moderate "Fair-List" figures frankly and openly published herewith.

That I ever heard of above
Here's the dandelion a-bloomin'
An' the Johnny-jump-ups out!
Here's the cherry trees in blossom
An' the bluebirds on the wing—
"Zee! zee!" winter's a-bloomin'
In the flow'ry lap of Spring.
It's enough to make a body's Temper fairly biltin' a-fizz.
Just to see that gray ol' codger—
Stuffed up with rheumatism!
Limpin' round among the posies;
But the most disgustin' thing
Is to see the dotard lollin'
In the lap of rosy Spring.
"She's as purty as a picture!"
Poet's say, an' praise 'er form.
Claim 'er eyes 're bright an' sparklin'
An' 'er breath 's sweet an' warm;
But I own that it amazes
Me to see that maiden fling
Both 'er arms around ol' Winter!
I'm a little down on Spring!
Why, it's set the people talkin'
'Bout the bold an' shameless pair.
An' the peach-tree a-bloomin'
At the scandalous abuse!
While the robins 're so ashamed, sir,
That they secretly dare to sing—
"Per that villain 's a-cuddlin'
In the lap of balm Spring!"
This modest little poem sounds like James Whitcomb Riley, but it is from the pen of James Ball Naylor, who plays a close second to Riley, as a composer.
An old saying that "there is no fool like an old fool" and so we are always free to criticize the old man in his dotage who seeks to form an alliance with a maiden just blossoming into womanhood. We sometimes excuse the girl, if the old man has money.
Mr. Naylor expresses popular sentiment when he criticizes balm Spring for carrying on a flirtation with old winter in the rags of dissolution and decay. The most of our language that would not look well in type.
The oldest inhabitant is confident that he never saw a spring quite so backward and the man with a hoe feels like cursing the leaden sky when he attempts to till the soil. If the weather man backed back bone he would find it difficult to carry out his program, but he never talks back and in spite of criticism and dire forebodings, seed time and harvest continue with monotonous regularity.
There is most always a cheerful side to every dark picture, and it always pays to cultivate the cheerful.
There were patches of sunshine all through the month of April, so noted for showers, and so faithful in fulfillment.
Two or three years ago old winter
let go the first of March, and before the middle of the month the earth was clothed in May day attire. The trees were covered with foliage. The birds were nesting and mating, and
the spring fever caught us unprepared.
Then the old man came back, the first of April, and carried on a violent flirtation. He not only sat in the lap of spring, but he squeezed the life out of the fair maiden, stripped the trees
of their foliage, broke up the bird families and reinstated himself as monarch of nature.
The first of May found us weak and subdued, but spring has wonderful powers of recuperation, and the things which seemed dead and hopelessly lost, speedily recovered, and before the month closed old earth was in full swing, and the harvest came along as usual.
Half a century ago it was predicted that in fifty years we would have no summers. Science had discovered the fact that great changes would occur in the realm of nature. The stary heavens told the story, and astronomers were free to reveal the great secrets disclosed.
This was during the era when the world was slated to come to an end
in a given day, and deluded disciples
sold or gave away their possessions,
and assembled on some hill top to await translation.
But history has failed to verify these dire predictions. The great mind which created and the hand which holds the planets steady on their course, is still in control, while the seasons come and go as of old.

The claim has long been made that one of our choicest pleasures is found in the joy of anticipation, and experience makes the claim good.
The man who has a passion for field sports thinks as much of his rod and gun as he does of his wife, and frequently gives them more attention.
He plans for his camp in the woods with boyish pleasure, and though the game may be scarce, and the fish reluctant to bite, there was no alloy in the anticipation.
The boy looks out into the hopeful future and plans for the niche which he will occupy. He builds air castles and anticipates the joy of occupancy,

but his plans are often frustrated, and
his hopes unrealized.
The girl swings in the hammock and dreams of the home which she will share out in the years to come.
A day-dream full of happy anticipation,
but the realization is often disappointing, and memory harks back with longing for the care-free life.
In the realm of nature the season
of anticipation follows the long,
dreary winter, when the life current which has been hid away beneath the surface, becomes active, and while water never runs up hill, this life current forces its way to the topmost
twig of the highest branch and breaks out in a bud of promise, and decks
the gray forest with foliage and the garden with blossoms.
The seed, which seems so lifeless,
scattered broadcast by the husband-man, responds to the same life-giving touch and soon the barren fields are covered with a carpet of green. And when the golden harvest is ready to be garnered, we are reminded that nature not only anticipates, but she promises and fulfills.
The man who boasts of skepticism
and unbelief is both blind and deaf, when he fails to recognize the God in nature in the month of May.
The span of human life is sometimes compared to the seasons. The youth in the home is the bud of promise, the middle age is the time of harvest, with solicitude, and loving care,
protects it through the period of helplessness.
When the little life begins to unfold
the care is undiminished, and she attempts to guide the little feet and undeveloped mind into paths of safety
and helpfulness.
In the hey-day of youth life asserts itself and growth and development follow. The young man is the bud of promise, the middle age is the time of harvest, with solicitude, and loving care,
protects it through the period of help-

The Doodiebug music was on in full blast. As the morning shade pointed out the following day, the room was tastefully but expensively decorated with washbuds and jinnive,
and the hostess wore a delicate train of dinkie silk and rhinestones.
"By Jove!" thought Geoffry Swatts, between yawns. "There's a poor man over in the corner that looks as if he's having an even worse time than I am. I'll go over and sympathize."
And he went over and sat beside the man in the corner, remarking,
"Beastly bores, these musicales, aren't they?"
"Rotten," yawned the man in the corner.
"And this one's a little bit worse
than the worst."
"Absolutely," yawned the man in the corner.
"Look at the hostess! The idea of rigging herself up like that!"
"Isn't she a sight," yawned the man
in the corner.
"Let's go home," yawned Geoffry Swatts.
The man in the corner looked interested.
"A fine idea," he yawned. "Go ahead and blow. I can't."
"Why not?" yawned Geoffry Swatts.
"I live here," yawned the man in
the corner.

When you consider the years and years that a refrigerator

When you consider the daily satisfaction, the economy in

BOYCOTT ON GERMANY
IN PEACE BY FRANCE
ENTENTE POWERS MAY PRO-
HIBIT GERMAN PRODUCERS
IN THEIR NATIONS AFTER WAR.
PROTECT THEIR TRADE
Spirit of French Grows Steady and in United Manner to Shut Out
German.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, May 6.—The proposed boycott, after the war, of German products in France and other countries
of the entente might, until recently,
have been looked upon as a reasonable
peace treaty. The idea is now apparently rooted in the minds of individuals as
to constitute a menace that may resist any sort of peace treaty. The only official action regarding trade
between citizens of France and the central empires applies only to the period of hostilities. Private initiatives, however, has gone for in the direction of a permanent ostracism of merchandise from countries now at war with France. If it continues to develop along the same lines it may
make official action superfluous.
Nearly every French trade corporation that has felt German competition in the past is not only spreading
the doctrine of preference for articles
made at home or by the French allies,
but is also endeavoring to bring about
a boycott with an air of initiative that
was rare in French business circles
prior to 1914. It involves the systematic education of consumers as to what German articles and products
they bought before the war without
knowing it, and what French, British,
Russian and Italian articles may replace them. Starting with the characteristic Parisian article called "articles of Paris" local manufacturers
were shown in detail how the Germans had secured the manufacturing cost
and competed with them even in their home market; this was done by a public exhibition of German-made
"articles of Paris" and by explanatory
literature spread among the little manufacturers. The French manufacturing industry that is so important
in Paris; although the articles are of minor importance, they are made in
large quantities by a great number of small manufacturers. Following this propaganda with the manufacturers, the movement extended to
a propaganda with the families, showing them the difference between the French and the German made articles.

BOYCOTT ON GERMANY
IN PEACE BY FRANCE
ENTENTE POWERS MAY PRO-
HIBIT GERMAN PRODUCERS
IN THEIR NATIONS AFTER WAR.
PROTECT THEIR TRADE
Spirit of French Grows Steady and in
United Manner to Shut Out
German.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, May 6.—The proposed boy-
cott, after the war, of German products in France and other countries
of the entente might, until recently,
have been looked upon as a reasonable
peace treaty. The idea is now apparently
rooted in the minds of individuals as
to constitute a menace that may resist any sort of peace treaty. The
only official action regarding trade
between citizens of France and the
central empires applies only to the
period of hostilities. Private initiatives, however, has gone for in the direction of a permanent ostracism of
merchandise from countries now at
war with France. If it continues to develop along the same lines it may
make official action superfluous.
Nearly every French trade corporation that has felt German competition in the past is not only spreading
the doctrine of preference for articles
made at home or by the French allies,
but is also endeavoring to bring about
a boycott with an air of initiative that
was rare in French business circles
prior to 1914. It involves the systematic education of consumers as to
what German articles and products
they bought before the war without
knowing it, and what French, British,
Russian and Italian articles may replace them. Starting with the characteristic Parisian article called "articles of Paris" local manufacturers
were shown in detail how the Germans had secured the manufacturing cost
and competed with them even in their
home market; this was done by a
public exhibition of German-made
"articles of Paris" and by explanatory
literature spread among the little
manufacturers. The French manufacturing industry that is so important
in Paris; although the articles are of
minor importance, they are made in
large quantities by a great number of small manufacturers. Following this propaganda with the manufacturers, the movement extended to
a propaganda with the families, showing them the difference between the
French and the German made articles.

The Effects of Phylorhea

are such that any physician will advise the cure.

Most any laymen knows that the action of pus in the body is a sign of a serious disease, and that if the system continues to absorb pus for any length of time it must become thoroughly poisoned.

When a person is suffering from Phylorhea, pus is being formed constantly around the teeth and discharged more or less freely into the mouth. This pus is either absorbed by the tissues of the mouth, increasing the infection, or it is swallowed, and enters the system in large quantities with the saliva.

In this way the pus reaches the stomach and intestines and goes into general circulation, being taken up by the lymphatics of the intestines.

COOP AND LENTZ A CLEAN CIRCUS THAT HAS A BIG FUTURE

Circus That Considers Janesville for Winter Quarters Gave Excellent Parade and Show.

Janesville entertained its first circus of the season today when the Coop & Lentz circus arrived from Stoughton and after their noon parade gave a most excellent exhibition at the Park Association grounds. It was one of the cleanest small shows that has visited Janesville in many years and while handicapped by lack of workmen to handle their various departments their parade, the condition of their horses and wagons and the general tone of the whole show was most excellent and bespeaks a bright future for the show in the circus world.

The rains of the past week had softened the ground at the park, but by the aid of the powerful six and eight horse teams the troubles were overcome, and while the parade was late in leaving the "hot" it was well worth waiting for. The parade played excellent music, the clowns were funny, the various open cages and equestrian cavalcade all bespoke the sort of an afternoon entertainment that was enjoyed by all who attended.

This morning at nine a special committee of the Park Association and the Commercial Club met with the representatives of the show and talked over the prospect of the show being in Janesville for permanent winter quarters. The management stated they expected to employ something like a hundred and twenty-five men the year round, winter quarters and all to train a special school of high school horses and that the grounds here and the city and general conditions were most acceptable. It is possible that the prospect of the show being in Janesville for permanent winter quarters with the management and some arrangements can be made for the accommodation of this show here this next winter.

RETURNS FROM WEST, FINDS HOME ROBBED

Thieves Entered House of Mrs. Fred Jones as Far Back as December, Police Think.

Mrs. Fred Jones returned to Janesville and her home at 315 Jackson street yesterday following an extended trip in the west, to find that the house had been ransacked from cellar to attic during her absence. From the appearance of the interior of the house it was evident that the thieves took plenty of leisure in making thorough overhauling of closets and cabinets and drawers. It was evident that the robbery was committed several months ago. The police believe it was done as far back as December.

Entrance to the house had been gained through a rear second story window, the linen bed sheets, comforters and a little clothing and two necklaces of more or less value were discovered to be missing. Two large amounts were among the booty of the thieves, but the persons who got them will have considerable time disposing of them. They are glass.

The police department sees little chance of capturing the thieves. It was not known at the police station what the aggregate value of the articles missing would be and telephone calls to the Jones home this afternoon were unanswered.

The Demon of the Desert.

It is not generally known how a devil rides a camel, but Mr. Hans Vicher acquired the information and imports it in his volume, "Through the Sahara."

One night a camel suddenly ran amuck. Other camels followed suit, and a general panic ensued.

"The frightened yells of my escort told me that a ghoul, a wicked demon of the desert, had seized the camel. I was told how these evil spirits sometimes took a fancy to mount a camel: the camel would then look to see who was digging it in the ribs, and, perceiving no one, fear would grip its heart, for then it knew that the devil was on its back."

HERR. HARDEN HAS CHANGED VIEWS OF PRESIDENT WILSON

GERMAN WRITER HAS NOTHING BUT WORDS OF PRAISE NOW.

ISSUES 2D STATEMENT

Noted German Authority Gives New Thoughts on Question of United States Leader.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, May 6.—After figuratively taking the public's breath away two weeks ago by a daring article captioned, "If I were Wilson" Maximilian Harden today returns to exchange of defense of President Wilson, his policy and entire American standpoint.

In a letter in the Zukunft, entitled, "The Real Wilson," Herr Harden praises President Wilson as "a man of high moral and high spiritual character of whom we might be proud of if he were ours." What the writer characterizes as "lazy ignorance" is reassured as "chattering from the mantle of would-be patriotism, which in reality has nothing in common with genuine patriotism when President Wilson is assailed as he frequently has been.

"Ninety-nine one-hundredths of all the so-called war literature," Herr Harden continues, "should be sent where it belongs—to the paper mills—and the public should return to books from which a wide awake spirit speaks, including President Wilson's 'The New Freedom.' Then perhaps, pure common sense will return to you and awaken you to the duty of respecting the dignity of foreign people."

Herr Harden follows with a brief character sketch of President Wilson in which he calls the president a "brave opponent of evil and abuses," and alludes to him as "actuated by a love for his people, and possessed of the will to lead them to the heights of his ideals, after they have gotten into the swamp land."

"Germany," he adds, "should be ashamed of people who slander him because they have wrecked calumny in newspapers."

In all his controversies with Germany, said Herr Harden, President Wilson has acted from absolute conviction.

"Dare we measure by standard of a student's squabble the complaints of a great free nation, led by the man of weight and importance of President Wilson?" asks the writer. "If President Wilson, after a thorough investigation, is convinced warlike acts of Germany have broken laws of humanity, it was not only his right, but his duty to talk them clear. He owes this not as a duty to himself, but to humanity."

FRENCH GENERAL CONFERS DECORATIONS ON ORPHANED CHILDREN AND WAR WIDOWS

General Cousin conferring war decorations on orphaned children and on widows in Paris.

A moving spectacle is witnessed in Paris from time to time when decorations are conferred on orphans and widows for the gallantry of their fathers and husbands. The ceremony pictured here took place in the historic Invalides. As each recipient approached he was handed the decoration for which his father's life was given, and a brief recital of his heroic deed was read. These heroic scenes, witnessed by large crowds of people, have quickened the determination of the French.

It cannot be but the author of the Greatest Show on Earth was right. (Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"Twin Beds." Selwyn and Company sponsors for "Within the Law," "Under Cover," "Under the Knife," "Rolling Stones," "The Show Shop" and "The Lie," whereby of fine plays fine productions and fine casts, will present their clearest, merriest of farces "Twin Beds," the laugh festival of Salisbury Field and Margaret May, which had from New York the unquestionable tribute of a fifty-two weeks' run on Broadway, at the Myers Theatre on Monday, May 15, with an ideal cast of farceurs.

"Twin Beds" gains its enormous popularity by its clean wholesomeness, its swift action, its sparkle of bright lines and its brilliant characterization. Its story is built around the fact that people who live in fashionable big apartment houses, whose only personal bond is that they pay rent to the same landlord, still have an unwelcome neighborliness thrust down their throats by way of electric dumbbells and insufficiency of laths and plaster.

The exceptionally skillful cast with which Selwyn and Company will present "Twin Beds" includes Juliette Day, P. Paul Porcasi, Marian Lord, J. Morrill Morrison, Editha Maxham, William Weston and Eleanor Wilton. Seats go on sale at box office Friday, May 12.

AT THE APOLLO.

Dustin Farnum on Monday. A striking contrast of the manhood of east and of the west is strongly pictured in "Ben Blair," the Fallas production coming to the Apollo theatre, on the Paramount program, Monday.

In the scene where Ben, the unpolished westerner, goes to force an issue with Sidwell, the society favorite who has supplanted him in Florence Winthrop's favor, the two American types are exemplified. Blair finds Sidwell drinking heavily with congenial friends and on their departure his western blood forces him to say "You're the only obstacle between me and the woman I love. Can you tell me any reason why I shouldn't remove that obstacle?" But his western blood also makes him bow to the seeming truth in Sidwell's answer. "Yes, a good reason—she loves me and she doesn't you."

Cooler thoughts and passed memories later make him doubt this statement. He goes to Florence's father with a plan that awakens the ex-plainman's admiration and support and brings this strong western drama to a successful finish.

evening clothes and is quite at his ease in metropolitan society in the new Ince-Triangle play, "Between Men," to be seen at the Beverly theatre tonight. To make the contrast more vivid, Hart is first seen wearing the wide Stetson, the buckskin shirt and corduroy trousers of mining men. Then he comes to

New York to rescue a mining man who is in the toils of a Wall street operator.

Hart changes to the attire of society when he appears at the home of his friend and meets his charming daughter, played by Enid Markey. Hart seems as much at ease with his dress suit and patent leather as he was when he was in rougher and more unconventional garb. He is still the cool westerner, ready for anything and everything that may happen. Miss Markey is delightful to look upon, her dark beauty being set off effectively by filmy garments in the latest mode.

AT THE BEVERLY THEATRE.

Douglas Fairbanks on Sunday. In the Fine Arts-Triangle play "His Picture in the Papers," at the Beverly Sunday, it looked easy for Peter Prindle (Douglas Fairbanks) to get his portrait displayed on the front pages of all the New York papers—yes, it looked almost too easy. Here's what the hero actually did before he put through the proposition, gained a half interest in his father's firm and was awarded the hand of the girl he loved. Wrecked an auto and went to the hospital as he was thrown off a train; put out a champion middleweight, and fought a losing fight with two husky policemen. At last he won by fighting off a gang of yeg-men and saving a train from being wrecked.

In these days of strenuous advertising this comedy is interesting as showing how a man eager to attain notoriety may fall down time after time only to attain it when he is not looking for it. Fairbanks makes an attractive picture as a lively youth who prefers a good, juicy beefsteak to the dissipated foods that his rich father exploits through the press. He also has a preference for boxing.

Marguerite Clark Coming on Tuesday. Marguerite Clark, the exquisite little Famous players star, has been seen in many different characters but she has never done anything more absorbingly interesting and more thoroughly sympathetic than Elise the delightful little Alpine shepherdess in "Out of the Drifts," which is the Paramount picture at the Apollo theatre on Tuesday.

"Out of the Drifts" is a big story of the great Alps and of the everlasting snows in which this superb little star is seen battling not only for life itself against the elements but the same herself from a young rone with whom a great avalanche has penned her in a deserted cabin. We have laughed and cried with Marguerite Clark in many funny and some touching situations, but in this story she gives us something entirely new—the fearless, unspoiled girl in mankind and her Maker feels her courage in time of peril and wins our heartiest sympathy in moments of distress.

A children's matinee will be given at 4:15 o'clock, after-school.

MARIE DORO AGAIN TRIUMPHANT.

Famous Players Stars Celebrated Stage and Screen Beauty in Selwyn's "Diplomacy."

Marie Doro, whose motion picture debut in the Famous Players production "The Morals of Marcus," and subsequent appearance in the same company's "The White Pearl," stamped her as one of the most winsome and altogether charming actresses on the screen, will shortly be seen in the Famous Players-Charles Frohman adaptation of the celebrated Sardou drama "Diplomacy," which will be the Paramount picture at the Apollo Wednesday.

This is by no means the first time that Marie Doro has played in "Diplomacy," as she was co-star with William Gillette and Blanche Bates in the stage version of the play at the Empire theatre New York last year. At that time she was declared by the New York critics to be the real star of the production, as her work in the role of Dora—the same one which she plays in the motion picture—was the most finished and most delightful of all. One of them expressed it as follows: "It is Marie Doro who is the star of all stars in the play. She is not only an actress of rare charm, equal alike to light comedy and tense situations, but she is unusually beautiful. In the scene in which her husband makes it known that she is suspected of being a spy, of having stolen the precious documents, she is the central figure and carries the entire burden of the action and character portrayal.

OLD TRAMP IS AGAIN TAKEN IN CUSTODY

John Murphy, the giant whiskered panhandler, was taken into custody by the police this morning, after they had searched for him for several days. Murphy was up in court this week and promised that if sentence was suspended he would leave the city.

Various complaints were received against his conduct and several times the aged beggar stopped and even threatened women on the street, when they refused to give him money. A number of vagrants were picked up by the police this morning and all suspects on the crowded streets were taken into custody, to be held until after the circus exhibitions.

RESCUE HORSE WHICH BROKE INTO CISTERN

The fire department was summoned to 452 North Pearl street yesterday afternoon to pull a horse out of a cistern hole. The team was driven by George Hiller and started across the rear of the lot. One of the horses broke through a cistern, the animal's hind quarters going into the hole. The firemen put hose under the struggling horse and lifted it. Two long and jagged cuts were inflicted by projections of the cistern, which were sewed up by a veterinary surgeon.

Regarding Silver Black Foxes—By Collins, The Fox Man

A Message That May Mean Your Fortune

THE last advertisement you read regarding Silver Black Foxes, was over the signature of "Collins The Fox Man," manager of the Reedsburg Silver Black Fox Ranch. So truly marvelous have been the results of this ranch and so insistent and numerous have been the requests for shares in this new Wisconsin industry—that a new ranch (absolutely the best from every standpoint) has been built at Reedsburg and a new Company incorporated with a capital stock of $60,000.00 and called THE WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY. I wish to call your attention to the unprecedented opportunity offered you by the WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY for sharing in the wonderful profits of this new Wisconsin industry, which is THE SOURCE OF MANY A MILLIONAIRE'S WEALTH in Canada.

I realize that the silver black fox industry is a business that is foreign to your mind. Nor are you the only one to whom it comes as a sort of surprise. In the course of social and business life I have had the pleasure of interviewing many people, men and women of standing, and when, being asked what was your vocation, I informed them that I was engaged in the production and domestication of Silver Black Foxes, they invariably gave me a glance of surprise, and said, "What kind of a business is it?" "Please tell me all about it." Strange that I never heard of it until now. And when I happened to mention the fact that these very animals before they are born are sold on options, bringing prices that are astounding, my hearers would say, "Is it possible that such a small animal can be worth more than its weight in gold?" Perhaps I would then ask, "What do you think the price of such an animal is worth?" Well, they wouldn't like to make me feel bad, and would think they were boosting the price when they'd say, "Oh, I suppose $300 or $400." Now just stop and think. Aren't these remarks very similar to what you have been thinking? Haven't you had this very same impression? Well, let me tell you something of what silver fox pelts in the raw are bringing at the present time, in spite of war conditions and the stringency of the market.

At an auction sale held in St. Louis by Funsten Bros. & Co., October 21, 1915, there were sold 10 Silver Black Fox pelts. The highest price realized was $2610 for two skins, or $1305 each. Others sold in pairs brought prices ranging from $1160 to $1850 per pair. The average price received for these 10 pelts was $718.00 each. A well known Fox Rancher who saw these pelts says that "only five of them were of first grade foxes that were killed at the proper time of the year, while the others were what we would term second or third grade." It is safe to say that had the other fourteen pelts been taken off at the proper time an average of $1000 would have been reached.

The next sale I desire you to take notice of, was brought about by the Fur Sales Board, a body of men representing the best known and oldest ranches in America. Withing to test the New York fur market they brought there for sale 20 skins. Seven of these skins sold to Joseph Ullman, 20 West 20th Street, New York, brought $1000 apiece. The others brought somewhat lower prices, bringing the average down to $945 each for ten skins, and $725.25 each for the whole twenty. The animals may have been of first class quality while alive, but were not the best from the pelt point of view, because they were killed in the month of November, when the pelt is not at its best.

Wisconsin Silver Black Fox Ranch and Manager Collins, the Fox Man.

BUY STOCK NOW AND GET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR.
The Bell telephone stock went begging at 10c a share. $100 invested in that company has earned over $400,000.00.
When Burroughs financed an adding machine he was considered crazy. $100.00 invested with him is worth $49,000.00.
Gillette, of safety razor fame, offered his stock at 50c a share. $100 invested then is now worth $40,000.00.
Furs are getting scarcer year by year and only one relief is in sight. Grow them in captivity. Fox ranches will pay larger dividends each year.
SPECIAL: The old Reedsburg Ranch has just declared a 40% dividend.

I now call your attention to a very important sale held by the New York Fur Auction Sale Corporation, at Madison Hall, New York, on March 27, 1916, at which 137 silver fox skins were put up at auction sale. 134 of these skins were of the very common variety known and classified more as a gray fox, or a fox showing conditions of rust. The other three pelts were ranch bred skins, and for each of these three $780 was received. The general advance in price on all silver fox skins, owing to the enormous demand for that scarce commodity, was 35%.

Do you realize now why this business has made the parts of America in which it has been carried on for the past twenty-five years the richest parts of the world today per capita. Do you realize that in sections where Fox Ranching is a common industry they don't know what it means to meet a beggar on the street? And further, men who at one time were not trusted with a bag of flour, men who could scarcely sign their names to a check, are today worth a million dollars and over? Not on account of education or business ability but in spite of the lack of these elements, they accumulated vast wealth; they made it out of nature. They made it in the breeding of the SILVER BLACK FOX.

At the present time, there are not more than 1500 pairs of silver black foxes in the world in captivity that could safely be termed true silver black. That is to say, foxes that will breed true to color. If we were to slaughter these animals for their pelts.

THE DEMAND FROM THE NEW YORK MARKET IS SO GREAT that it would take about one hour to dispose of the entire lot, and the dealers and manufacturers would ask for more. That is the reason why this business is so wonderful—WHY IT HAS PAID SUCH HIGH PROFITS.

In the pens of the WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY'S ranch will be found one of the finest collections of foxes in the world. The WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY is the second largest company engaged in this business in the United States. Leading Fox men throughout Canada and the United States will tell you that the WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY is under the very best management and is in every way a model company. It is indebted to no one. No one can say our Company owes one cent to anyone. In other words, WE HAVE NO LIABILITIES. Because we have NO LIABILITIES, and because we do not desire to have any, WE ARE ASKING YOU TO TAKE PART OF THE STOCK WHICH WE ARE NOW OFFERING TO THE PUBLIC, $60,000 AT $10.00 PER SHARE.

This business is endorsed by the Department of Agriculture at Washington, and by the Commissions of Conservation. The WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY is endorsed by some of the leading bankers and other prominent business men of this and neighboring cities and by many of the leading newspapers of the state, as well as by several publications in Canada. We are keeping in touch with the Bureau of Biological Survey in regard to the growth of this industry in Wisconsin, informing them from time to time as to the work carried on in the two ranches at Reedsburg.

If this message were written on a thousand Dollar Bill, it could scarcely be more valuable to you than is the message it contains. ARE YOU GOING TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE OPPORTUNITY?

PRESENT PROSPECTS POINT to a very successful year in the breeding of the foxes on the Ranch here, and Fox men everywhere are looking forward to larger profits than ever before received from the business. We urge you for your own good to make an investment, no matter how small. You will never regret it. The first ranch started in Reedsburg less than a year ago, the Reedsburg Silver Black Fox Company have this season sold enough pups to pay all expenses of running the ranch another year and have declared a 40 per cent. dividend with more to follow.

Hoping to have the honor of placing your name on our books as a stockholder in the WISCONSIN SILVER BLACK FOX COMPANY, we remain,

Yours very truly,

Hundreds of People Attend Annual Exhibition at High School Yesterday Afternoon and Evening.

Hundreds of people visited the high school yesterday afternoon and evening, viewing the largest and best display of school work that has ever been shown in the history of the Janesville high school children, and there interested in the work which has been done, swarmed the different departments and the teachers were kept busy showing the visitors around.

The domestic science, manual training and agricultural departments were the places of greater interest. The work that has been done in these divisions surpasses that of all other years. Parents were shown just what their children have been doing and many more were surprised to see of what value their efforts have been.

The teachers of the domestic science department, with Miss Beth Bailey at the head, are to be commended upon for the things that have been accomplished this year and for the grand display that was made ready for the exhibition yesterday. The senior girls have been exhibiting the results of their home management studies. Complete house plans were shown with the furnishings and color schemes. The rooms where the juniors' work was on display was like an open book. The display was so well arranged that the visitors could see the work of the third year girls had made during the study hours. The remodeling of dresses could not be told from the newly made gowns.

The sophomore girls' array of hats that they had made in the study of the manual training department, were very beautiful. They have done excellent work in this line. The freshmen girls have made many small articles of wearing apparel and much fancy work, all of which were on display in the open day yesterday. The remodeling of dresses could not be told from the newly made gowns.

The manual training and domestic science departments were about on a par with the number of articles shown. The work shown in the former department was by far much larger and better than was collected for the exhibition of last year. The teachers in this department, Messrs. Barber, Wertzell and Reck, have done much to build up the work. Never before has such a large variety of forgings been turned by a local high school junior class. The students have made everything from a common barn hook to fancy hammer heads and nre-place equipment. In drawing they have also made complete plans of houses and barns. One boy has partly constructed a canoe while others have made flat bottom rowboats. All afternoon and in the evening people visited the manual training rooms.

The agriculture room was another place of interest to a great many people. A number of the boys taking this study were on hand giving demonstrations of their work, such as testing milk and soil. The testing of corn was also explained to the inquiring guests. The study of the various kinds of ropes and the splicing of them caused much interest to the rural visitors.

Every other department in the school was fully represented with displays of their work. The commercial department teachers explained to all the workings of their division. In the classical rooms writings of the different kinds of languages were on the blackboards. In the room where botany is studied species of the different kinds of plants were on display. Every one who visited the school yesterday is now looking forward to the next exhibition which will be held next year.

WEATHER MAN TELLS THE "WHY" OF THE AURORA BOREALIS

WEATHER MAN TELLS Sun Spots Given Credit for Producing Luminous Phenomena Recently Visible to Janesville People in Northern Skies.

"What's the cause of the meteorological phenomena visible to Janesville and Rock county residents recently in the northern skies?" was the question asked Eric Miller, the government weather man at Madison.

"Sun spots, or aurora borealis," said the weather dopest.

"I'll explain," the observer generously offered, and he immediately plunged into a discussion of electrons positively and negatively charged, of an atmosphere beset with a luminous phenomena caused by the excitation of the result of contact with projected particles from the sun of diffused auroras and solar and terrestrial phenomena. And of solar disintegration radio-active matter, and magnetic poles."

"Having protested to the weather-maker that he was not president of the Royal Meteorological society, the questioned asked him kindly to repeat the interview in English. He did."

"Very often the sun shows spots upon its surface which are visible through a telescope. These spots, at present on the sun, are regions of enormous disturbance on its surface. An electric current is thrown off. When this current of electricity, carrying electrons, reaches the upper and thinner portions of the earth's atmosphere, it comes in contact with magnetic lines of force that are hurrying toward the north magnetic pole. The same is true in the southern hemisphere, where these lines of magnetic force are directed toward the south magnetic pole. When the force meets light is produced. There you have the aurora. This light forms a collar about the magnetic pole, much as the auric circle does about the north geographic pole. But the magnetic pole is nearer to us, being situated in northern Canada. It is because of this that you people in Janesville can see the aurora when it is especially bright."

An arc of light across the northern horizon, explained Mr. Miller, is the forerunner to the aurora. Streamers of light then come up at right angles, bringing us to the last stage, that visible in Janesville on the April 27 and 28. The last stage is the most beautiful, for it shows draperies of light overhead, waving and colored. The phenomena is very attractive, and Mr. Miller gave hope to those who did not view the recent atmospheric attraction when he stated that there probably would be such occurrences in the near future. The aurora is visible in the extreme north and extreme south during the greater part of the year.

Evansville, May 6.—Martin Hansen, a farmer residing east of this city, experienced a miraculous escape from death on the C. &amp; N. W. tracks here yesterday morning. While driving down Main street his team became frightened at something in the vicinity of the postoffice, making a wild dash for the railroad tracks. Any efforts to restrain them on the part of the driver were absolutely futile and they rushed onto the tracks and into north bound freight No. 593, which was switching in the yards. The horses got down, within six inches of the track, and Mr. Hansen was thrown from the wagon onto the horses' heads. He was injured and plunging around in such a manner that the spectators feared to see him hurled onto the tracks instantaneously. He, however, recovered his footing and escaped unhurt. One of the horses died almost instantly from a severe wound received from a corner of the wagon box. The other horse escaped with minor injuries.

SUPPLEMENTARY LISTS
PLEASE OUR READERS.

New Universities Dictionary Praised for Completeness.

The demand for The New Universities Dictionary being offered by this paper continues unabated despite the fact that quantities have already been distributed. Letters from readers express in highest terms the general satisfaction which this remarkable book has given.

The twenty-five supplementary dictionaries giving the definition of words properly used in connection with commerce and law, war, golf, aviation, baseball and other sports are esteemed with particular favor by individuals whose interests centers on one or the other of these specialized activities.

Another feature eliciting special comment is the splendid way in which the volume is illustrated with color plates and quotations. Included in these illustrations is an excellent photo of a submarine boat, that unique type of craft which has played such an important part in the present war with Europe, undergoing a sea test. Types of some of the most formidable battleships in the English, German and United States navies are also shown, and various kinds of ships, which also have figured so conspicuously in the military operations of the European armies are strikingly pictured in action.

Cruel Science.

Now he stood by the kitchen table reading the labels on parcels his wife had brought home from town. "Self-raising flour," he said. "Ah, gad, they'll be inventing self-raising wheat next to throw us poor devils out of another job!"

Buick VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTOR CARS

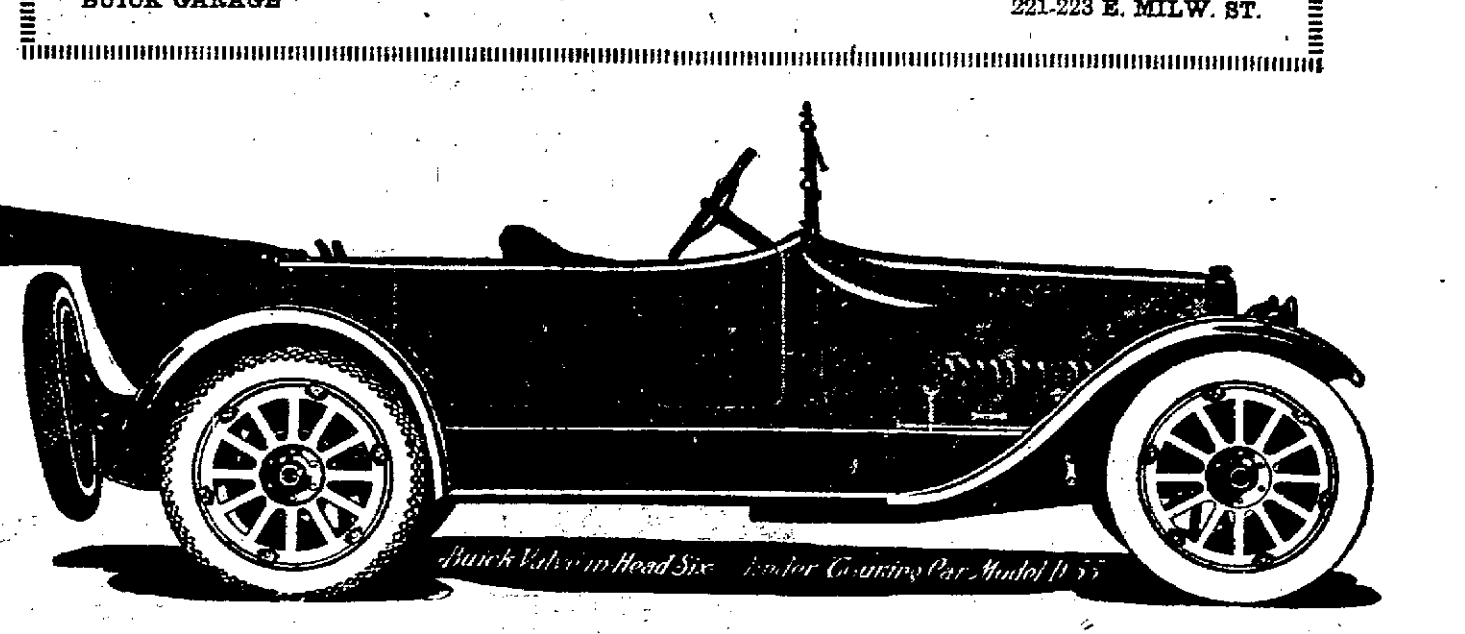

THE BEST POSSIBLE INVESTMENT

Buying a Buick Motor car is closely akin to buying a good farm or a good bond. A Buick Motor car is what the bankers call a cash asset. There are thousands of bankers who would just as soon lend money on a car load or a train load of Buick Motor cars as on the best farm land.

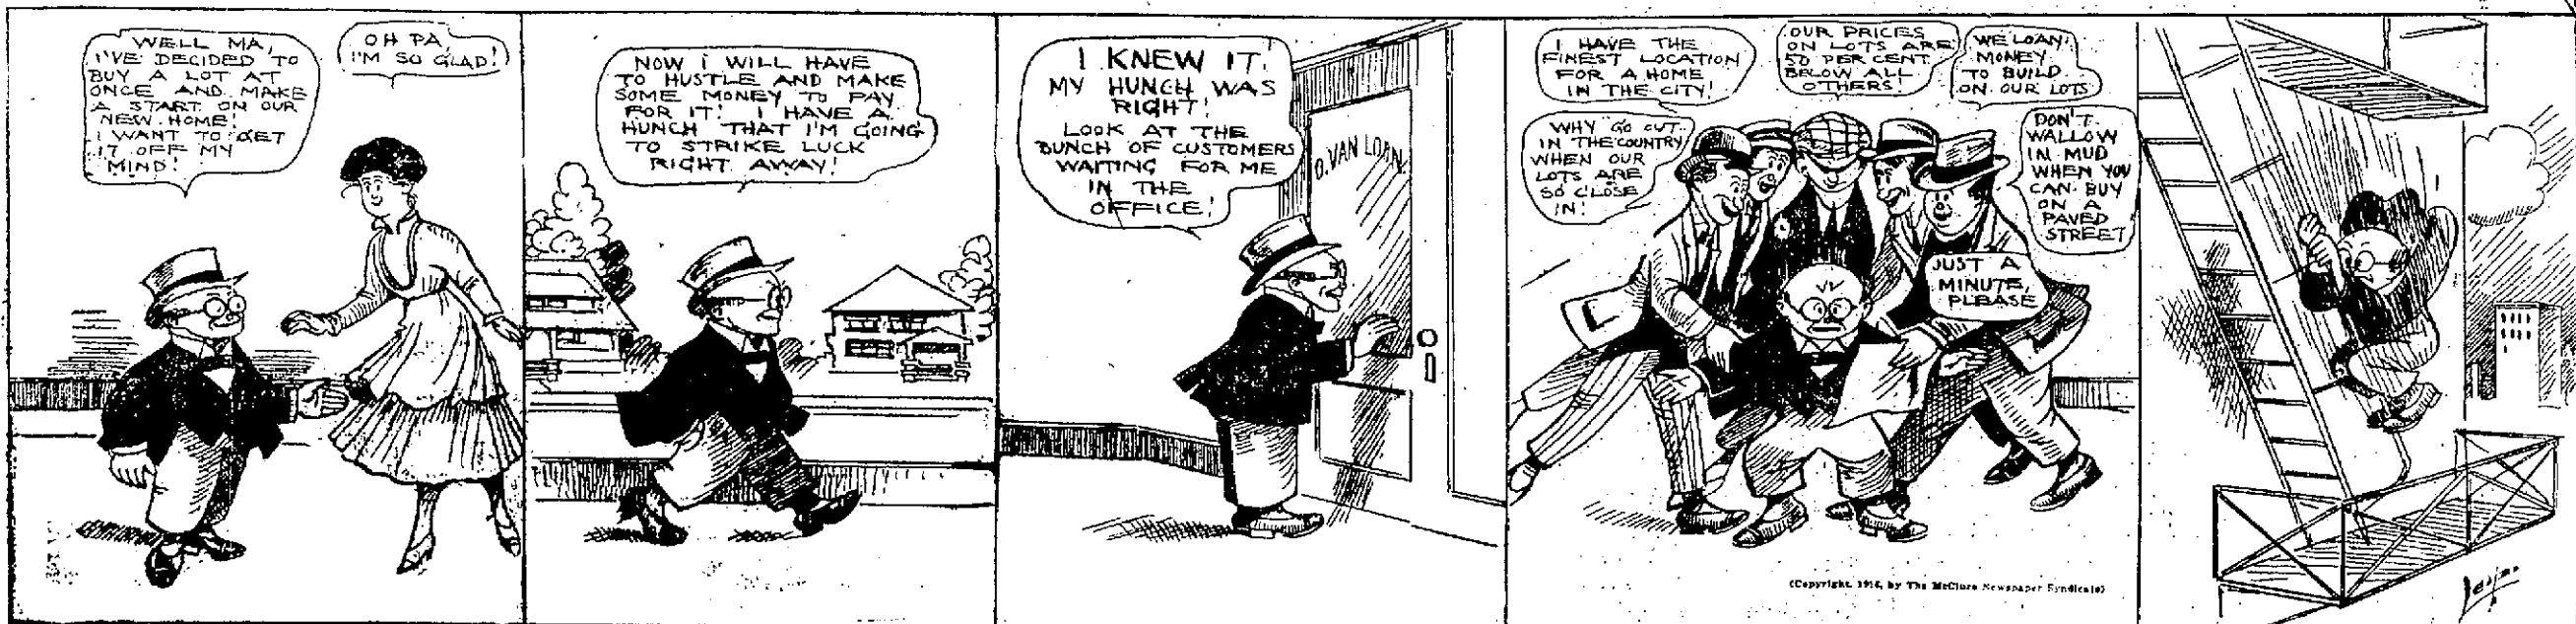

The man or woman who buys a Buick Valve-in-Head motor car takes no chances. There is no risk involved. It is an investment that is safeguarded at every turn, and one that will yield as great a return in health, in pleasure, in satisfaction of ownership, in prestige, and in freedom from doubt and worry—as any investment that could possibly be made.

Buick Motor cars have backing of the most substantial sort. They are constructed on engineering principles that were conceived when the motor car industry started, and which have gained steadily in public favor and the best expert opinion ever since.

They are endorsed by the more than a quarter of a million men and women who use them. A Buick Valve-in-Head motor car is a strictly gilt-edge investment.

CHAPTER I.

There is a midland city in the heart of fair, open country, a dirty and wonderful city nestling dingily in the fog of its own smoke. The stranger must feel the dirt before he feels the wonder, for the dirt will be upon him instantly. At a breeze he must smother in whirlpools of dust, and if he should decline at any time to inhale the smoke he has the meager alternative of suicide.

Not quite so long ago as a generation there was here no heaving, grimy city; there was but a pleasant big town of neighboring people who had understanding of one another.

But there was a spirit abroad in the land, and it was strong here as elsewhere—a spirit that had moved in the depths of the American soil and labored there, sweating, till it stirred the surface, rove the mountains, and emerged, tangible and monstrous, the god of all good American hearts—Ripeness. And so the place grew. And it grew strong.

The Sheridan building was the biggest skyscraper; the Sheridan Trust company was the biggest of its kind, and Sheridan himself had been the biggest builder and breaker and truster and buster under the smoke. He had come from a country crossroads, at the beginning of the growth, and he had gone up and down in the booms and relapses of that period; but each time he went down he rebounded a little higher, until finally, after a year of overwork and anxiety—the latter not decreased by a chance, remote but possible, of recuperation from the former in the penitentiary—he found himself on top, with solid substance under his feet; and thereafter "played it safe." But his hunger to get was unabated, for it was in the very bones of him and grew fiercer.

He was the city incarnate. He loved it, calling it God's country, as he called the smoke Prosperity, breathing the dingy cloud with relish. The smoke was one of his great enthusiasms; he laughed at a committee of plaintive housewives who called to beg his aid against it. "Smoke's what brings your husbands' money home on Saturday night," he told them jovially. "You go home and ask your husbands what smoke puts in their pockets out of the pay roll—and you'll come around next time to get me to turn out more smoke instead of chokin' it off!"

He Called the Smoke Prosperity.

It was Narcissism in him to love the city so well; he saw his reflection in it; and, like it, he was grimy, big, careless, rich, strong, and unquenched.

atly optimistic. Just as he profoundly believed his city to be the finest city in the world, so did he believe his family to be—in spite of his son Bibbs—the finest family in the world. As a matter of fact, he knew nothing worth knowing about either.

Bibbs Sheridan was a musing sort of boy, poor in health, and considered the failure—the "odd one"—of the family. Born during that most dangerous and anxious of the early years, he was an ill-nourished baby, and grew meagerly, only lengthwise, through a feeble childhood. At his christening he was committed for life to "Bibbs" mainly through lack of imagination on his mother's part, for though it was her maiden name, she had no strong affection for it. One day when the sickly boy was nine, he requested with unwonted reverence to be allowed to exchange names with his older brother, Roscoe Conkling Sheridan, or with the oldest, James Sheridan, Jr., and upon being refused went down into the cellar and remained there the rest of that day. And the cook, descending toward dusk, reported that he had vanished; but a search revealed that he was in the coal-pit, completely covered and still burrowing. Removed by force and carried upstairs, he maintained a cryptic demeanor, refusing to utter a syllable of explanation, even under the lash. This obvious thing was wholly a mystery to both parents; the mother was nonplussed, failed to trace and connect; the father regarded his son as a stubborn and mysterious fool, an impression not effaced as the years went by.

At twenty-two Bibbs was physically no more than the outer scaffolding of a man, waiting for the building to begin inside—a long-shanked, long-faced, pickety youth, sallow and hollow and haggard, dark-haired and dark-eyed, with a peculiar expression of countenance; indeed, at first sight of Bibbs Sheridan he seemed upon the point of tears. To a slightly longer gaze, not grief, but mirth, was revealed as his emotion; but Bibbs never, on any occasion in his life, either laughed aloud or wept.

He was a "disappointment" to his father. At least that was the parent's word—a confirmed and established word after his first attempt to make a "business man" of the boy. He sent Bibbs to "begin at the bottom and learn from the ground up" in the machine shop of the Sheridan Automatic Pump works, and at the end of six months the family physician sent Bibbs to begin at the bottom and learn from the ground up in a sanitarium. "You needn't worry, mamma," Sheridan told his wife. "There's nothin' the matter with Bibbs except he hates work so much it makes him sick. I put him in the machine shop, and I guess I know what I'm doin' about as well as the next man. Ole Doc Gurney always was one o' them nutty alarmists. Does he think I'd do anything 'd be bad for my own flesh and blood? He makes me tired!"

Anything except perfectly definite health or perfectly definite disease was incomprehensible to Sheridan. He had a genuine conviction that lack of physical persistence in any task involving money must be due to some subtle weakness of character itself, to some profound shiftiness or slyness. "Look at me," he said. "Look at what I did at his age! Why, when I was twenty years old, wasn't I up every morning at four o'clock chopplin' wood—yes! and out in the dark and snow—to build a fire in a country grocery store? And here Bibbs has to go and have a doctor because he can't—Pho! It makes me tired! If he'd gone at it like a man he wouldn't be sick."

He paced the bedroom—the usual setting for such parental discussions—in his night gown, shaking his big, grizzled head and gesticulating to his bedded spouse. "My Lord!" he said. "If the little, teeny bit o' work like this is too much for him, why, he ain't fit for anything! It's nine-tenths imagination, and the rest of it—well, I won't say it's deliberate, but I would like to know just how much of it's put on!"

"Bibbs didn't want the doctor," said Mrs. Sheridan. "It was when he was here to dinner that night, and I noticed how he couldn't eat anything. Honey, you better come to bed."

"Eat?" he snorted. "Eat! It's work that makes men eat! And there's another thing you'll notice about good health, if you'll take the trouble to look around you, Mrs. Sheridan; busy men haven't got time to be sick, and they don't get sick. You just think it over, and you'll find that 99 per cent of the sick people you know are either women or loafers. Yes, ma'am!"

"Honey," she said again, drowsily, "you better come to bed."

"Look at the other boys," her husband bade her. "Look at Jim and Roscoe. Look at how they work. Right now there isn't a harder-workin', brighter business man in this city than Jim. I've pushed him, but he give me something to push against. You can't push 'nervous dyspepsia! And look at Roscoe; just look at what that boy's done for himself, and barely twenty-seven years old—married, got a fine wife, and ready to build for himself with his own money when I put up the new house for you and Edie."

"Papa, you'll catch cold in your bare feet," she murmured. "You'd better come to bed."

"And I'm just as proud of Edie, for a girl," he continued, emphatically, "as I am of Jim and Roscoe for boys. She'll make some man a mighty good wife when the time comes. She's the prettiest and talentedest girl in the United States! I tell you I'm mighty proud o' them three children! But Bibbs—" He paused, shaking his head. "Honest, mamma, when I talk to men that got all their boys doin' well and worth their salt, why, I have to keep my mind on Jim and Roscoe and forget about Bibbs."

Mrs. Sheridan tossed her head fretfully upon the pillow. "You did the best you could, papa," she said, impatiently, "so come to bed and quit reproachin' yourself for it."

He glared at her indignantly. "Reproachin' myself?" he snorted. "I ain't doin' anything of the kind! What in the name of goodness would I want to reproach myself for? And it wasn't the best I could, either. It was the best anybody could. I was givin' him a chance to show what was in him and make a man of himself—and here he goes and gets 'nervous dyspepsia' on me!"

He went to the old-fashioned gas fixture, turned out the light, and muttered his way morosely into bed.

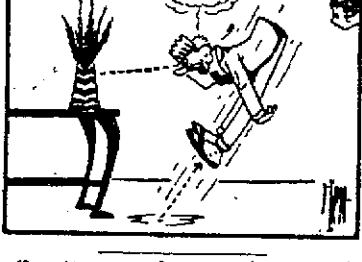

"What?" said his wife, crossly, bothered by a subsequent musing. "More like bookworm, I said," he explained, speaking louder. "I don't know what to do with him!"

The City of Numbered Days

By FRANCIS LYND

Massingale's misto was cropping to the firing level when Brouillard flung away the telephone earpiece and got between. Afterward there was a crash like a collision of worlds, a whirling, dancing medley of colored lights fading away to gray and then to darkness, and the engineer went down with the avenger of wrongs tightly locked in his arms.

After the period of darkness had passed and Brouillard opened his eyes again upon the world of things as they are, he had a confused idea that he had overslept shamefully and that the indulgence had given him a bad headache.

The next thought was that the headache was responsible for a set of singular hallucinations. His blanket bunk in the sleeping shack seemed to have transformed itself into a white bed with pillows and snowy sheets, and the bed was drawn up beside an open window through which he could look out, or seem to look out, upon a vast sea dimpling in the breeze and reflecting the sunshine so brightly that it made his headache a darting agony.

When he turned his face to escape the blinding glare of the sun on the sea the hallucinations became soothingly comforting, not to say ecstatic. Someone was sitting on the edge of the bed; a cool hand was laid on his forehead; and when he could again see straight he found himself looking up into a pair of violet eyes in which the tears were trembling.

"You are Amy—and this is that other world you used to talk about, isn't it?" he asked feebly.

The cool hand slipped from his forehead to his lips, as if to warn him that he must not talk, and he went through the motions of kissing it. When it was withdrawn he broke the silent prohibition promptly.

"The way to keep me from talking is to do it all yourself; what happened to me last night?"

She shook her head sorrowfully.

"The last night you mean was three weeks ago. Stevie was trying to shoot Mr. Cortwright in your office and you got between them. Do you remember that?"

"Perfectly," he said. "But it still seems as if it were only last night. Where am I now?—not that it makes any difference, so long as I'm with you."

"You are at home—our home; at the 'Little Susan.' Mr. Leshington had the men carry you up here, and Mr. Ford ran a special train all the way from Denver with the doctors. Stevie's bullet struck you in the head, and—and we all thought you were going to die."

"I'm not," he asserted, in feebly desperate determination. "I'm going to live and get to work and earn a hundred thousand dollars, so I can say, 'Come, little girl—'"

Again the restraining hand was laid upon his lips, and again he went through the motions of kissing it.

"You mustn't talk!" she insisted. "You said you'd let me." And when he made the sign of acquiescence, she went on: "At first the doctors wouldn't give us any hope at all; they said you might live, but you'd—never—never remember—never have your reason again. But yesterday—"

"Please!" he pleaded. "That's more than enough about me. I want to know what happened."

"That night, you mean? All the things that you had planned for. Father got the mine back, and Mr. Leshington and the others got the riot quelled after about half of the city was burned."

"But Cortwright and Schermerhorn—I promised them—"
"Mr. Leshington carried out your promise and helped them get the money out of the bank vault before the mob sacked the Nigroia building and dynamited it. But at the hotel they were arrested on the order of the bank examiner, and everything was taken away from them. We haven't heard yet what is going to be done with them."

"And Gomorrah?" he asked.

One slipped an arm under his shoulder and raised him so he could look out upon the mountain-girt sea dimpling under the morning breeze.

"There is where it was," she said soberly, "where it was, and is not, and never will be again, thank God. Mr. Leshington waited until everybody had escaped, and then he shut the wasteway gates."

Brouillard sank back upon the pillows of comfort and closed his eyes. "Then it's all up to me and the hundred thousand," he whispered. "And I'll get it—honestly this time." The violet eyes were smiling when he looked into them again.

"Is she—the one incomparable she—worth it, Victor?"

"Her price is above rubies, as I told you once a long time ago."

"You wouldn't let pride—a false pride—stand in the way of her happiness?"

"I haven't any; her love has made me very humble and—and good, Amy, dear. Don't laugh; it's the only word; I'm just hungering and thirsting after righteousness enough to be half-way worthy of her."

"Then I'll tell you something else that has happened. Father and Stevie have reorganized the 'Little Susan' Mining company, dividing the stock into four equal parts—one for each of us. You must take your share, Victor. It will break father's heart if you don't. He says you got it back for him after it was hopelessly lost, and that is true."

He had closed his eyes again, and what he said seemed totally irrelevant. "And after the man had climbed the fourth mountain through all its seven stages, he saw a bright light, and it blinded him so that he stumbled and fell, and a great darkness rose up to make the light seem far beyond his reach. Then the light came near, and he saw that it was Love, and that the darkness was in his own soul."

Kiss me, Amy, girl, and then go and tell your father that he is a simple-hearted old spendthrift, and I love him. And if you could wire Castner, and tell him to bring a license along—"

"Oh boy—foolish boy!" she said. "Wait; when you are well and strong again."

But she did not make him wait for the first of the askings; and after a healing silence had fallen to show the needlessness of speech between those who have come through darkness into light, he fell asleep again, perhaps to dream that the quieting hand upon his forehead was the touch of Love, angel of the bright and shining way, summoning him to rise up and go forward as a soul set free to meet the dawning day of fruition.

THE END.

DINNER STORIES

Both chef and waiter were Irish and excitable. The waiter rushed back into the kitchen, red with rage. "You've done it, now!" he said. "There is a customer kicking about the potatoes. He says they're no good. They've all got black eyes." "Black eyes?" said the cook. "Sure an' if they have it's no fault of mine. The bastes must have been fightin' after I put 'em in the pot!"

Two brothers, Julius and William, but commonly called "Jule" and "Bill," were in the same class. On the first morning of the new teacher's regime, every pupil was called upon to give his name. The older of the two brothers gave his first, "Jule Clark."

"No abbreviations, please—the whole name," said the teacher, severely.

"Julius Clark."

"And you?" she queried of bashful little William. He was frightened out of his boots by her newness and her severity.

"Billus Clark," he stammered.

"I wonder why they elected Briggs as a delegate to the national convention."

"Why not? He ought to be an ideal delegate. He's had plenty of experience serving as dummy director for half a dozen big corporations."

"Could you let me have a sample of this goods, please?" asked the shopper.

"Sorry, madam," said the salesman, "but we've been obliged to discontinue the giving away of samples since we discovered that some of our customers were having them made up into bathing suits."

The Salt In the Sea.

The Erthagoreans held that the sea was salt by reason of the tears shed by Kronos, father of Zeus. According to the old Hebraic tradition, the ocean was originally a great body of fresh water, but which was made salt by the abundant tears of the fallen angels. One sect of Buddhists believe that Lot's wife—that is to say, the "pillar of salt" which was once the wife of the humble gentleman named above—lies at the bottom of the ocean in a certain narrow strait and that once each year the waters of all oceans flow through that narrow channel. The Talmudic writers say that it was never salt until Moses wept repentance after breaking the tables of stone.

Don't neglect a pain anywhere, but find out what causes it and conquer the cause. A pain in the kidney region may put you on your back tomorrow. Don't blame the weather for swollen feet, it may be an advanced warning of Bright's disease. A pain in the stomach may be the first symptom of appendicitis. A crack in a joint may be the forerunner of rheumatism. Chronic headaches more than likely warn you of serious stomach trouble. ## Side Lights on the Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later
Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

A Sunday run from here to Rochelle, Ill. From Rochelle, they go to LaSalle, and from there to Streator. From Streator they go on southeast, taking in some of the best show towns in Illinois.

Janesville people should surely give the Coop & Lent shows a warm welcome and two good houses for some, at least of the feature acts of the show, are given by former Janesville people. Now that the Coop & Lent show is casting around for new winter quarters, where they will be convenient to their Chicago office, let us see if we cannot do something in the way of furnishing at least, quarters for the coming winter. The directors of the Commercial Club held a meeting this morning at nine o'clock with the owners of the show, but just what conclusion they arrived at, I do not know, but let us hope that we can offer them sufficient inducement to make their winter quarters here, where they would be within an easy reach of their office in Chicago during the winter.

ROAD MAP OF WISCONSIN WILL BE OF VALUE TO MOTORISTS

About the middle of last month, the Al. G. Barnes great animal show, opened in San Francisco for a run of eight days. While this was a much longer stay than any other show had ever dared to contract before, Mr. Barnes felt that his show was worthy of the long stay, and in this, his judgment seemed to be good, for it was the largest eight days receipts that the show had ever seen, and this, in the face of six days out of the eight being disagreeable weather. But the Al. G. Barnes Great Animal Show was the best this country had ever seen, having three rings and a platform, and giving the animal acts at the same time, and the performance lasting two hours.

After the opening of the matinee performance the first day, the people commenced to come, and several times during the engagement, they turned out in a way.

Mr. Barnes was so well pleased with the reception there and the high class work that his people did, that he decided to perform the entire evening, and the last performance of the evening, he gave the entire company a banquet. He notified them before hand, that all the principal performers would be expected to give a little talk, giving the people some kind of an idea how they came to be in the business, and who were their first instructor. In fact, in a short way they were to give a description of their life work in the business.

After several had given their experiences, a man whose hair was tinged with gray, told them that he was put in the business by the grand old Roman of them all, a man by the name of George K. Steele.

Long since retired from the business, and was spending his last days at his old home in Moundsville, West Va. This will be interesting to many of the older citizens of Janesville, who well recollect George K. Steele, as the advance agent for Burr Robbins for some eight or ten years.

This man said that Mr. Steele put him in the business in the early 80's and that he never had missed traveling with a tented show since that time. During his remarks, he went on to say that the show business of today was very different from that of the early 80's, when he first joined out.

"Then," he said, "it was common talk for any people to look for an excuse like going to take the children and other excuses, but today it was different, and there was a reason for it, and possibly," he said, "more than one. To begin with, many of the shows, especially the larger ones, did much toward bettering the conditions of the show people. One who has done his part in the uplift of the business is Al. G. Barnes, a man who from the very start was as high class as possible, until today, the average person is not looking for excuses to go to the big shows, but are always anxiously waiting for the show to come."

Right here it is not out of place to say, that the Ringlings, from the very first start in the business, have protected their property, and their one object in view has always been to give the public exactly what they advertised, and make it as safe a place for the public to attend, as a church social or a county fair.

Back in the 80's with the Adam Forepaugh show, there was a door tender, whose name I will not mention, and by the way, he was one of the best front door men with any circus in the country. He was such a grouch, though, and a man that could never see the funny side of anything. In fact he was such a grouch, that someone around the show christened him "The Distress Signal." While he heard this many times, it never seemed to make any difference with him, and if anyone ever got through the main entrance without the proper documents, it was dollars to red apples that they did not pass through the door, where "The Signal" had charge. But that is one position around a big show where they have turned a deaf ear to the out of ten complaints that are made.

The Baraboo Daily News of May 1 sees fit to publish my letter concerning my visit to the Ringling show in Chicago, and why not? For the home folks in Baraboo are always glad to hear of anything in the way of success coming to the Ringling boys, as they call them. For it is there that they have watched them with pride from the time that they played riddles on every corner around the old stone court, house, until today, when they are the millionaire owners of two of the greatest shows on earth.

The Sells Photo Show, whose winter quarters are at Denver, Colorado, added another great attraction to their show only a short time ago, before taking the road for the season. Willard, the heavyweight champion of the world, and Frank Gotch, the world's champion wrestler, will have to divide their laurels with the Baby Elephant, the youngest and smallest elephant that will be on exhibition during the season. This youngster who will be one of the features of the show, will be introduced to the audience every day, and its exact are announced in the ring at every performance. This is the youngest and possibly the only baby elephant born in this country.

The Sells Photo show is in Kahaws at present, but working its way east, and expect to take in all the principal cities possible in the eastern country.

This week the Barnum & Bailey show will close a week's engagement in Philadelphia, after which they start out on the one day stands, expecting later to take in the western country.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace show are routed through Ohio and Pennsylvania, and expect to put in several weeks at least, through the east.

The Coop & Lent show which exhibits here Saturday, May 6th, make

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
In care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am an orphan girl twenty years old and am engaged to a man twenty-seven. We became engaged about a month ago, but do not expect to be married before December.

(1) Do you think that is too long an engagement? (2) How long after you become engaged should you get an engagement ring? (3) I think I am so much in love that it makes me miserable when he comes to see me. I am so happy, but just as soon as he leaves I get blue and lonely and think a thousand different things. Some nights when he comes he just loves me and seems to think the world of me and perhaps the next time he is indifferent and does not seem to care whether he kisses me or not. What makes him act that way? Are all men like that?

(4) Do you think 11 o'clock is too late for him to stay?

(5) After a fellow and girl are engaged do you think he should go out with some other girl under any circumstances, such as card parties, theater parties or dances?

ALICE.

(1) An engagement from now until December is not too long.

(2) The engagement ring is given when the man can afford it. An engagement ring is not necessary, you know.

(3) All men are more or less moody and not as lovable at one time as another. Perhaps his mind is preoccupied with business and he is unconsciously indifferent to you.

(4) Eleven o'clock is not too late for him to stay.

(5) He should not go out with other girls.

Don't make the mistake of letting the man feel too sure of you. The girl who shows how utterly she loves a man does not get as much love in return as the girl who keeps a little of her love in reserve. Perhaps the cause of the man's indifference at times is that you give too much of yourself to him. To keep him seeking more and more will be better than to give him more than he asks.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it all right for a bunch of boys and girls to take a walk on Sunday afternoon? (2) I have a boy friend who thinks a lot of me, but I do not think much of him. How can I show him that I do not like him?

(3) I have a girl friend who runs around with married men and people talk about it. How can I keep her from going with them? I think a great deal of her.

(4) Can you tell me any cure for tan? I tan easily.

BROWN-EYED BETTY.

(1) Yes. (2) Don't go places with him or let him come to see you.

(3) Something is radically wrong with a girl's character if she goes with married men. Your friend knows as well as you do that she is not doing the right thing and if she refuses to stop you ought not to go with her.

Bottle when cold, and apply to the face at night with a soft cloth, letting the mixture stay on all night. Wipe over the face again in the morning after washing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) What is the correct thing to say when a boy takes you home?

(2) What should you say when you are introduced to someone and that person says, "I am glad to meet you?"

(3) What should you say when a boy asks to take you home and you don't want him to?

(4) What should you say when a boy wants to take you home and you accept?

(1) "Thank you for coming home with me."

(2) How your head slightly and repeat the person's name.

(3) "Thank you, I have made other arrangements."

(4) Say, "Yes, you may take me home."

money. I mean debts of gratitude. Someone does a lot of kind things for you—money things or other kinds. You know you owe him a debt of gratitude. It is like you owe him a debt of money. You should do up some pretence and repudiate that debt. Maybe you say, "Oh, well, he's got plenty of money. It didn't cost him any self-sacrifice." Or perhaps he does some little unkind act, and you seize the opportunity to say, "Well, after all he's mean and snobbish. I won't have anything to do with him."

Where Authors Find Their Material. "And you shrug your shoulders and shrug your debt off. There, may I smile at that if I want to?"

"You may," said the cynic, "if—"

"I didn't mean anything personal! Well I did. I was talking about the cynic that I've observed and been disgusted with."

The cynic seemed about to explode. "Don't get excited, don't get mixed up about it," said the cynic. "That's where I find most of the faults I talk and write about."

Household Hints

"NEVER FAIL"

Homemade Soap. Dissolve two boxes of lye in one gallon of water; stir occasionally until cool.

Melt nine pounds of clean grease so it is all melted.

When lye is cool, and grease is not too hot, pour the lye into the grease and stir with a stick, then let it set until the next day and cut out in pieces. This makes fine soap.

Mending Plaster. To mend broken plastered walls soak old newspapers in warm water a few minutes. Then wring out dry as you can and pull into small pieces.

Have ready a good flour paste such as is used for hanging wall paper. Mix thoroughly the pieces of paper and paste. With a tablespoon and putty knife pack into the places where the plastering has broken away. When packed in and leveled off, paste a piece of muslin over it. Then put wallpaper right on and it will stick and the wall will be as good as if a plasterer had been called in to make repairs.

To improve fudge drop two or three teaspoons of molasses into the mixture. This keeps it from becoming too sugary and gives it a better flavor.

A delicious dairy for the summer which requires no cooking is made by using equal parts of prunes, raisins, dates and figs. Wash and stone the prunes, pump the raisins by allowing them to stand for a few minutes in boiling water, and put all through the food chopper. Mix thoroughly and press into a shallow pan, cut in small squares and roll in powdered sugar.

THE TABLE. Savory Toast—One cup cold chopped meat, one-half cup tomatoes, salt and pepper. Add this to two chopped onions fried in butter until browned, and two bay leaves. Put all together, simmer until done, and put over slices of toast.

Potato Buns—Two cups milk or cream, four good-sized potatoes, four teaspoons baking powder, 1½ pints flour. Boil potatoes and put through a wire strainer. Add milk, then flour which has been sifted with baking powder. Mix well, shape into small cakes, brush over with melted butter and bake on buttered tin fifteen or twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Crisped Bird's Nest—Butter a pudding dish and put in four good sized apples sliced thin, a cup of sugar, pinch of salt and little pieces of butter over apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon. For the crust take one egg, one-half cup sweet milk, one large teaspoon lard, one teaspoon baking powder, flour to make stiff batter. Pour over apples and bake.

Baked Apples on a Bed of Rice—One cup cooked rice, one cup water, eight apples, two tablespoons lemon juice, two cups sugar. Press rice into mold, reheat in syrup made of sugar and water until tender. Remove apples; boil syrup until thick; unmold rice; arrange apples on rice and pour sauce around them. Sprinkle apples with powdered sugar.

Entire Wheat Gems—Two cups rich buttermilk, one egg, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon soda, pinch of salt, four to make thin batter. Bake fifteen minutes in hot oven.

Potato Fried Cakes—One and one-half cups sugar, one cup mashed potato, two eggs, three tablespoons melted butter, one cup sweet milk, three tablespoons baking powder, flour, grated nutmeg to flavor.

Rice Cake—Take some leftover cold rice and beat into it one egg. Make into cakes, pour and bake.

Potato Nests With Peas—Six boiled potatoes, one egg (beaten), peas, carrots, parsley. Mash and season six boiled potatoes, being careful not to add too much cream. Line well-greased muffin pans with the potato, leaving a nest in the center. Brush with beaten egg and bake until a golden brown. Remove carefully to a platter and fill center with creamed peas and carrots. Garnish with parsley and send at once to the table.

Oatmeal Gems—Soak over night a cup of oatmeal in a cup of cold water. In the morning sift together one cup of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and a very recent teaspoon of salt. Add this to the soaked oatmeal and mix thoroughly. Wet the mixture with half a cup of sweet milk, thus making a stiff batter, drop into the buttered gem pans and bake for fifteen minutes in a quick oven.

Potpie Dough—One-half cup bread flour, one level teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, sweet cream. Sift dry ingredients into a bowl. Mix with enough sweet cream to make dough a little softer than for rolled biscuits. Drop immediately into boiling gravy. Cover, and boil about ten minutes. Use pork for mixing. This is always light and easily digested.

EMMA GOLDMAN IS FORCED FROM NEW YORK WORKHOUSE AND STILL DEFIES LAWS (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New York, May 6.—"In the cause of her motherhood I am still proud and glad to be a criminal," said Emma Goldman today when she had completed her fifteen days' confinement in the workhouse on Blackwell's Island.

Miss Goldman was a prisoner here just a week ago. This time she was sent up for publicly advocating birth control.

She pleaded her own case, lost and had her choice of a $100 fine or prison. "I prefer to go to the workhouse," she said. "I won't buy my way out of anything."

"I shall go right on distributing birth control pamphlets," she said today.

She teach it for the sake of joyous childhood and glorified motherhood," she said. "There are 300,000 half-starved women who need the information—what kind of children do you think they would be? If this crime, I am willing to be a criminal."

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

SPRING IS HERE—FEEL IT IN YOUR FEET.

The robins are not always reliable, the birds are often leads us astray, the flowers are worn by some aggressive individuals the year round, garden tools were featured in the store windows weeks before the last freeze, but Spring is here now for sure. We can tell by the letters about foot troubles recently pouring in.

Here is a sort of composite copy of these letters and a special reply, in the hope that our labors may be lessened enough to permit a day's finishing, yet not leave any reader in distress.

One gains in the tops of my feet—more like a burning, red, at night or in the evening. My feet swell, my calves and hips ache. My feet perspire a great deal, and they tire early in the day. I am a clerk, and on my feet eight hours. Please advise me what to do.

Nine out of ten of these letters come from young women. Of course, they all try to dress fashionably. This is a great mistake. A young woman, speaking in a strict hygienic sense, we frankly admit that women's feet look more attractive than ever before—yet we insist that shoes are atrocious. There are more foot troubles than usual this Spring. This is why.

The toes are too pointed. The forefoot is too far outturned from the straight inside sole line. The heels are too narrow and too high—both of these facts, but ruinous to a woman's health. Otherwise the shoes are admirable, and the women who wear them, God bless them, are lovelier every year. Even the worst and the ugliest, straight or nearly straight inside sole lines—there should be little or no space between the tips of the toes when heels are on.

Now, here is the answer: Get a pair of shoes with rounded, not square or ugly toes, straight or nearly straight inside sole lines—there should be little or no space between the tips of the toes when heels are on.

Answer—We expect to call it "Personal Health," but the title may be changed before the book is published. Our publisher is the slowest in the business, slow but sure. No doubt the work will be acclaimed from ocean to ocean when it does appear.

Answer—In a way. Whenever I get a cut, scratch or pimple it takes months to disappear entirely. Friend Aunt declares it is a sign of a man's disposition when he takes so long to heal, and that when she has anything similar it heads in a few days. As it is rather late to alter my disposition I thought you may be able to suggest some simple remedy.

Answer—The easiest way out, we should think, is to change your aunt. She isn't sound. Exchange her for a vial of iodine and a vial of flexible collodion. Rub the iodine on the sore, yourself, swab the place with collodion, then seal it over with the collodion.

A Weeping Sinecure. A year ago I strained the wrist, and every since then has been a soft, bluish on the back of the wrist. Is there any way to reduce this, or must it be cut out?

Answer—Well, the simple way would be to have the sac removed by your doctor under a local anesthetic at his office or your home. That will relieve it—assuming it is a weeping sinecure.

JINGLES' JINGLES

THE OLD SONGS.

The old songs are back with the call of the spring, with the bloom of the flowers and birds on the wing, for we have new neighbors whose laughter can sing—can yodel and screech like an inhuman thing. To me peace on earth and good will is a joke, we pound the typewriter, the keys rudely poke, and pray to the Lord, saying, "pity this bloke, the world for a brick that he break we might soak." But we've been informed and in truth now can say, the Lord tries our patience in many a way—it must be his will so we'll bear it and stay, we'll try to be neutral and not go astray. But moments there are when we're fiercely inclined to sidestep all reason, and go at it blind, and even up grievances we have in mind—a poor plan indeed, we eventually find. This play to get even by serious means, might do for barbarous creatures and fiends, but old man experience comes through and gleams, 'tis kindness will gather the friends and the beams. But back to the lay of the lady next door, we shriek for some mercy, but none is in store, we close up the windows, the transom and door, but still our goat bows to her hideous roar. Ah me, for a trip to that beautiful Drunk Single shore.

CLEVELAND DEFEATS SOX BY SCORE, 3 TO 2

White Sox Unable to Hit in Pinch and Indians Walk Off With Game.

Cubs Defeat Pirates.

A batting rally in the sixth inning started by John Granev, caused Chicago's downfall, 3 to 2.

When Granev came to bat in the sixth, after one man had been retired, Catcher Schulte called the umpire's attention to the fact that Granev was using a flat bat. The umpire ordered him to change his club, and when he returned to the plate he singled. Turner and Speaker followed him with safe drives, and after Roth's retirement resulted in three runs. Benz replaced Russell and held the visitors safe thereafter. Jon Jackson scored both runs for the locals. He tripled in the second inning and scored on Peiche's double, and in the ninth he made his second triple and scored on Weaver's two bagger.

Paul Des Jardien, the former University of Chicago pitcher, was given a tryout by the Cleveland club before the game.

Cubs Are Lucky.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 6.—Chicago defeated Pittsburgh, 5 to 3, here on Friday in a game which went thirteen innings.

With two out in the final inning, Wagner dropped Saier's fly ball and Kautlender passed Doclan. Archer followed with a two-base hit, scoring both men.

RED SOX WILL PLAY IN BELOIT SUNDAY

Red Sox' First Game Out of Town Sunday at Beloit With Beloit Olympics.

Sunday morning the Janesville Red Sox will journey to the Lake City to play the Beloit Olympics, a team composed of the best players Beloit has in the amateur class. Last season the Red Sox shut out the Olympics on their own diamond by the score of 12 to 0. The Olympics claim to be strengthened greatly this year and are many in the amateur class. There are many other teams in Beloit in the same class with the Red Sox, among them being the Fairbanks & Morse Apprentice team, but the Olympics are in for the first scalping.

The Sox have won four games this year and are planning on taking five straight. Kakuske will start the mound work today to help him out. Frank McGinley will not be able to play this Sunday because of illness.

The lineup for the Red Sox will be: Spohn, c.; Kakuske, p.; Jackson, ss.; Miller, 1b.; Hill, 2b.; Dopp, 3b.; Rohrer, v.; Hoveland and Fullerton, fielders.

BEST DRIVERS ARE ENTERED FOR RACE

Rest Heads List of Speed Kings Who Will Compete For Laurels at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 6.—With the sixth annual international sweepstakes on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway only a few weeks off, the activities are beginning to assume a tenacious at the Hoosier track. Dario Resta, speedway champion of the 1915 season, has entered with a Peugeot car. Resta gave DePalma a hard-fought battle last year at Indianapolis, but the latter won. Resta, however, cleaned up at Chicago. He is looked upon by many as the greatest speedway spinner that ever guided a racing car and never fails to thrill the spectators by his seeming lack of fear. He drives the limit at all times. His entry is the finishing touch that guarantees a great speed affair on the paved oval May 30.

The big race is Eddie O'Donnell. He won the Corona race in California this year, a race which cost the life of Bub Burton. He will drive a Duesenberg.

A new figure in speedway racing is Tom Rooney, who will drive the car built for Bob Burman. To date Rooney has appeared in only one race, in the New York speedway race last fall he won second honors and a prize of $10,000. The Premier car which Rooney will drive was especially built to meet many of the ideas of Burman. After the Speed King's fatal accident at Corona, the vacancy was offered to Rooney.

The only entry that hails from west of the Mississippi is from Kansas City. E. Duchesneau has built a special race car and named it after himself. He is a prominent restaurant keeper in Kansas City and he way races for the love of the game. Incidentally he is out to capture the fortune in prize money. He will drive his car, being a full-fledged registered driver. Ernest Schweinin will ride as mechanic. The car is a four-cylinder machine, 242 cubic inches piston displacement and weighs only 1,300 pounds.

From Cleveland comes an entry for a mystery car. The owner, who is also the driver, requests that his name be withheld until the last minute. He is a prominent business man in Cleveland, and is said to have spent a young fortune in getting a car built that has sufficient speed and ability to go the 300 miles in winning time. Both the driver and his mechanic are located in the Engineers' building, Cleveland; the cue for any who care to do the Sherlock Holmes act.

YANKEE ATHLETES ARE NOW PREPARED FOR OLYMPIC TEST

Five World's Records Have Been Broken or Equalled in Recent Meets—Sporting Notes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, May 6.—That the American athlete has reached a stage of preparedness that would bode ill for the rest of the world athletic were the Olympic games to be held this summer as originally scheduled, can be readily appreciated by a glance at the reports of track meets held in various parts of the country each week. Five world's records were broken or equalled in two sets of games last Saturday and the time in one of these events could easily have been bettered had the performers realized how near they were to record figures.

At the University of Pennsylvania relay meet the Cornell university four mile relay team, consisting of Taylor, Hoffmire, Windagle and Potter, equalled the record of 17 minutes 1.5 seconds, and Edgar, who ran the last mile, could easily have clipped this time had he known that he was within the bounds of possibility that the quarter or half mile might have done even better than 7 minutes 53 seconds had they been informed how near they were to the existing mark.

In the 120 yards high hurdles race Simpson of the University of Missouri skinned over the bars like a swallow in 15 seconds flat on a grass course, which was a fast, equaling the best time ever made on either cinder or turf. The star performance of the day, however, was one that went unclocked from an official standpoint. It was the running of the final quarter of the coming relay in the hands of Ted Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania. Meredith was timed by a number of expert handlers of nerves in the 400 yard race, two seconds for the relay, when he was trying to make up the long handicap given him by the third runner of the Pennsylvania team.

The difference in the figures recorded by these unofficial timers is explained by the fact that they started their watches at different stages. Meredith went back to ten yards beyond the starting line to meet the fast firing Scudder, who was running the third relay. When he took the baton he carried it fully 450 yards in the lead. Scudder, who was a second or two behind Meredith in the start, started their watches the moment he received the baton while others waited until he crossed the actual starting mark. These were the times which Meredith beat in better than 47 seconds flat on a curved track, whereas the world's record, 47 seconds, held by Maxey Long was made on a 440 yard straightaway.

The record breaking of the day was not confined entirely to the east, however, for on the Pacific coast Fred Kelly, one of the record holding hurdlers, did 22.5 seconds for the 220 yard hurdles around a curve, thus bettering the existing time. Kelly has been hurdling in wonderful form all spring, but he is not without worthy rival, since Earl Thompson defeated him in the 120 yard hurdles in 15 seconds flat, thus equaling the world's best time at about the same moment that Simpson was accomplishing a similar feat at Philadelphia.

A remarkable exhibition of gamesmanship was recently given in New York City by Jack Nlot, former Olympic champion wrestler, when he defeated a match with George Bothner for a large side bet and purse. Nlot had his right shoulder cleanly dislocated at the end of 30 minutes of wrestling. The fall was given to Bothner, and the ten minutes intermission a surgeon reset the dislocation and Nlot returned to the mat and wrestled five hours without Bothner being able to gain the second fall, and the referee declared the bout a draw, as the conditions called for two falls to win.

Racing in Berlin.

At the opening day of the "war racing season" at the Berlin trotting course of Mariendorf, $3,000 was paid in prize money and the state betting machines took in about $50,000. A large number of race meetings are planned for May and June.

Ancient Delphi.

Ancient Delphi was a small town in Greece on the southern slope of Mount Parnassus, where poets were supposed to draw their inspiration. The ancient town got its name from its founder, Delphus, son of Apollo, and there was a temple of Apollo there, where prophecies were made; hence the phrase Delphic or Delphic oracles. A fountain called the Castalian spring, supposed to be frequented and patronized by poets, was situated on the mountain side near Delphi. A portion of the site of the ancient town is now occupied by a village called Kastri, and interesting excavations have been made there in recent years.

But the Idea is the Same.

"I've got to give him credit for one thing; he's original, anyhow." "What makes you think so?" "He doesn't claim that he forgets money that he borrows." "No?" "He gives a new twist to the old gas. I loaned him five some months ago, and the other day he stopped me and said: 'By the way, I've forgotten whether or not I ever paid you back that five I borrowed from you.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

Jess Willard, our heavyweight champion, has started on a circus tour which should net him $150,000 more during the thirty weeks his contract calls for. Big Jess does not object to exhibiting himself before the small town populace, but he shows a marked aversion to appearing at the ring with a man in the other corner. Willard cannot be blamed for his attitude. He has enough of the worldly goods to retire right now. But as champion he must remain in the public eye, and Jess certainly does not detest the glare of prominence. Certain it is that Willard will make a neat little speech at the end of each performance to the effect that he will continue fighting in the ring until he is relieved of his championship. But it is a question whether he will return to the ring for more than one battle. He will be content to rest on his laurels after that.

Alexander, the Phillies pitching star, attributes much of his success to the fact that a majority of the batters in the National League are high ball hitters, and as Alexander has the ability to keep the ball low, whether it is a fast one or a curve, this gives him a great advantage over these batters who are helpless whenever the ball is kept around their knees.

"If, in the opinion of the umpire behind the plate, a pitcher attempts to hit a batsman there should be prompt action," says Joe Vila in the New York Evening Sun. "The pitcher should be instantly banished from the game. Leonard frequently has been accused of using the 'bean ball' and Numanaker was sure that he was a target for this unsportsmanlike delivery in the fourth inning of Friday's game. Leonard pitched a high fast ball that seemed to be aimed at Numanaker's head. The latter quickly fell to the ground to keep from being hit. The next ball was over the plate and Numanaker, who was sitting on the ground, hit the ball with his bat. The bat slipped out of Numanaker's hands and was picked up by the shortstop. Then Numanaker stopped watching Leonard and took the throw at first base. Leonard was knocked down, but he held on to the ball for a putout."

Joe Wood may be idle all this season. He took advantage of the existence of the Federal league in 1914 and got a big salary from Boston. This contract and the Federal league both have expired and it now is a question where Wood can catch on. He has not had a chance to show whether his arm is any better than it was last year, but the chances are that it has not improved much. Wood is a question mark that he put an awful strain on the elbow of his pitching arm, and it is this which has put his arm out of commission. There was a rumor that the Phillies might pick up Wood and give him a chance on his being able to fool some of the National League teams, but this is denied.

It is understood that Ben Johnson will issue a rule barring the wrinkle ball which Danforth of the White Sox has been using. It was this peculiar delivery that made Danforth a great pitcher in the Association last year, striking out more men than any other pitcher. He tried to use this delivery against the Tigers, and they have appealed to President Johnson to stop its use claiming it is just the same as using an emery ball. Naturally, the big leagues do not want to give the pitchers any further advantage over the batters, and any sort of delivery made possible by artificial methods will not be tolerated.

"All Gone Up Here."

Little Doris, nearly three years old during a recent trip on the cars was much impressed by a bald-headed man who sat near her. Every time she rides on the train she looks for him. On her last ride as soon as she was seated she began asking her mother questions about him, but mother was engrossed in other things and paid no attention. Finally, she stood up and asked emphatically, rubbing the top of her head, "Where's that man that's all gone up here?"

You Need a "Real" Corset

DURING the past few seasons styles have permitted more or less freedom in the wear of the corset. It has not been thought necessary by many women to wear the well boned models of the distant past.

This has, however, been carried to extremes, and we know of many instances today where women with a charming figure two or three years ago are now almost shapeless.

Fashions this season demand the corsetted figure, and even if your own figure has not begun to lose its graceful lines through improper corsetting, you will be on the safe side for the future by selecting a real corset.

By a "real" corset we mean a corset that will actually support your figure but will not bind. We have an admirable stock for you to select from, but particularly recommend the new models of

PLAIN FACTS ABOUT THE Shoe Leather Situation

An Open Statement to the Public By the Leading Retailers of Shoes In Janesville

We are uniting in publishing this statement because we know that the public is fair minded and interested in knowing the facts about the shoe leather situation.

Do you know that every single item that enters into the making of a pair of shoes---leather, linings, nails, thread, etc.---has greatly increased in cost in the last six months?

The causes for the general advance are briefly as follows:

1st. The demand for leather is greater than the supply---on account of the decrease in number of cattle in the United States, increased population and the European war.

2nd. Cost of tanning materials has increased 100% to 1000% owing to blockade of certain ports.

3rd. Decrease supply of raw skins by curtailment of some of the supply centers due to the European war.

4th. The freight embargo of Eastern railroads, due to shortage of ships for carrying.

5th. Increased marine, freight and insurance charges owing to the war.

6th. Export of huge quantities of sole leather to Europe.

7th. Increased leather consumption in America, due to the greater employment of labor all over the country and more money in circulation from increased business earnings.

8th. That many items entering into the making of shoes are off the wholesale market entirely at the present time.
